AKRON BALLOONS STILL UP

TWO BAGS REPORTED COVERED 375 MILES ON EASTERLY WIND

Several Believed To Have Passed Over Lake
Erie

AKRON, O., May 31.—Officials of the national balloon race which started from here late Monday, today had received reports from two of the fifteen entries, all of which were believed to still be aloft.

The two reporting were Navy No. 1, over Rochester, N. Y., at 7 a. m. and the Detroit No. 1 reported "going strong" over Gratz, Pa., about the same time. Each point mentioned is about 375 miles from Akron, according to officials.

Lieutenant T. W. Settle is listed as pilot of Navy No. 1 with Chief Boatwain's Mate George Steelman as aide, and Charles D. Williams, Jr., is listed as pilot of the Detroit No. 1 carrying G. W. Legallen, as aide.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 31.—Flying low and fast before a strong wind, its blue bag shining in a clear sun, a balloon believed to be one of the fifteen which took off from Akron, Ohio, yesterday in the annual balloon race classic, passed here at 8:40 this morning.

The balloon was seen also in Skaneateles and Minot. Although flying low as it passed over the city toward the east, the numbers on the bag were not distinguishable.

AKRON, O., May 31.—According to reports received here this morning, all of the fifteen entries in the national balloon race, which started from here late Monday, were still in the air.

Seven of the big bags were reported near Canada, while the other eight were drifting northeast, over Lake Erie.

When last sighted from here yesterday, the U. S. Navy No. 3, piloted by Lieut. Charles E. Bausch, was reported in the lead. Lieutenant Bausch's balloon was the second to take off.

Little difficulty was experienced by any of the contesting balloons in leaving the ground.

Approximately 40,000 spectators were on hand when the first balloon "weighed-off," at 5 P. M. Army No. 1 was the first to cut loose and the Akron Beacon-Journal was last.

CLEVELAND, O., May 31.—If any of the fifteen balloons competing in the national balloon race were flying over the southern Lake Erie region today, they were being favored with clear blue skies and comparatively calm winds, according to the local weather bureau.

A light mist which had been falling from dark clouds early today, cleared away and a bright sun was shining at 11 a. m.

Reports at this time from Akron, the starting point on the greatest national balloon race, in the country's history, stated that all of the huge gas bags were still in the air, so far as could be learned, and that seven of them were believed to be heading into Canada. The other eight were believed to be floating somewhere over Lake Erie.

YOUTH ARRESTED IN SUSPECTED MURDER

CLEVELAND, May 31.—Police here today were holding a suspect as one of two youths, early this morning carried an unidentified dead girl, believed to be between 25 and 30 years of age, into St. Alexis Hospital, and, after talking a few minutes with the nurse in charge, disappeared.

An examination by hospital physicians disclosed that the girl's neck was broken. Her body bore other marks, indicating that she may have been killed while putting up a struggle. A heel was torn from one of her slippers.

The youths were described to police as being about 25 years of age. Although police declared the girl's appearance did not indicate that she had been hit by a hit-skip driver, the suspect was found to have an auto with a bent fender.

VESSEL FIRED ON

HONG KONG, China, May 31.—Using dum-dum bullets, Chinese soldiers fired upon the steamer Kinshan, enroute to Canton, it was reported today. No material damage was done.

Registries of steamers in the Trans-Pacific Service do not list the steamer Kinshan. It is believed to be a vessel in the Chinese coastal trade.

NINE DIE AS FLOODS FOLLOW CLOUDBURST IN KENTUCKY

PRESTONBURG, Ky., May 31.—With nine known dead, scores of homes demolished and hundreds homeless southeastern Kentucky today was at the mercy of the flood waters of Big Sandy River in five mountain counties.

Toms Creek took a toll of three lives, all members of one family, at Paintsville, Johnson County, Monday, when two women and a boy drowned as they fell from a log foot-bridge to escape waters which threatened their home.

Six were drowned in Letcher County at Roxana and Elsie Coal, while fifteen homes are known to have been destroyed at Wayland, Garrett and Fleming near here.

Those reported drowned at Paintsville are: Mrs. Maude Bailey, 40, wife of Dr. T. B. Bailey; Mrs. Agnes Bailey, 80, his mother; and W. R. Bailey, 11-year-old son of the physician.

At Roxana Mrs. Greene Callahan

and her two children and two unidentified men were drowned, while at Elsie Coal Mrs. Chester Fields was a victim of the raging mountain streams.

Telephone service to Whitesburg, seat of Letcher County, has been suspended, and nearby points at Norton, Va., Harlan and Hazard, Ky., and Williamson, W. Va., report telephone service into the wind and storm swept region of the mountains has been discontinued.

BRITISH AIR CROSS CONFERRED BY KING GEORGE UPON FLYER

Received By Premier
Also—Term of Visit
Still Tentative

LONDON, May 31.—For the second time since his arrival in Europe royal honors were conferred today upon Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh in recognition of his epic trans-Atlantic flight when King George conferred upon him the air force cross. The ceremony took place at Buckingham palace where Capt. Lindbergh was the guest of the king.

Earlier in the day the intrepid young American aviator had been received at 10 Downing St. by Premier Stanley Baldwin.

Previous to the ceremony at the premier's official residence, Capt. Lindbergh had flown his famous monoplane ninety miles from the Croydon air field to Gosport, leaving it there to be dismantled and packed for shipment to New York.

Plans for Capt. Lindbergh's return home were still in doubt and belief was expressed that the young aviator would rescind his tentative proposal to sail for home on the United States liner, George Washington, on Thursday, finally taking advantage of President Coolidge's offer of an American cruiser to carry him to New York. In the latter event he probably would sail in about two weeks.

At 9:30 o'clock, accompanied by an attaché of the embassy, Capt. Lindbergh motored to 10 Downing St., where he was received by Premier Baldwin. On account of his parliamentary duties the prime minister had been unable to attend Monday's luncheon for the American aviator given by Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton at the American embassy, so he invited Capt. Lindbergh to call upon him this morning before going to Buckingham Palace.

The premier received Lindbergh privately, and formally congratulated him on behalf of the British people, and then in company with Mrs. Baldwin took the young flyer to the famous gardens of No. 10 Downing St., where they chatted for some time.

Upon leaving the premier, Lindbergh witnessed the changing of the guards in the horse guards parade and also saw a rehearsal of the trooping of the colors, a ceremony that is always carried out on the King's birthday. Arriving at Buckingham Palace Lindbergh saw another military display for the household guards were on parade there, the guard being changed.

Shortly after 8 o'clock crowds began to gather in the streets near Buckingham Palace, hoping to get a glimpse of the plucky flyer. The jam became so great that the policemen detailed to hold the streets were hard pressed to hold back the ever growing numbers and reserves had to be rushed to the scene from Scotland Yard.

The aviator was accompanied by Frederick A. Sterling, counselor of the embassy, and Lieut. Col. Kenyon A. Joyce, military attaché, during the palace visit and other ceremonies. Ambassador Houghton is leaving for the United States. He sailed from Southampton on the Her Leviathan just about the same time that Capt. Lindbergh was going to the palace.

When Capt. Lindbergh entered the palace King George met him and warmly shook him by the hand. Immediately the king asked his visitor to be seated and started a friendly conversation. The king asked a number of questions about the trans-Atlantic flight which

KING BENJAMIN TO TESTIFY IN ACTION TO ABOLISH COLONY

May Be Brought Into
Court On Stretcher
At Trial

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., May 31.—"King" Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David, will testify in the state's suit to disclose the colony, it was announced today.

This announcement spiked reports that the cult chieftain would not go on the stand for a searing cross-examination regarding alleged mistreatment of young girls in the colony.

His condition permitting, "King" Ben will be brought into court on a stretcher to face his accusers. But if he is too ill his deposition will be taken at his bedside in the House of David with lawyers for the state and defense, and newspapermen and others present. W. J. Barnard, defense attorney said.

At the same time the state announced it will fight any move to take Purnell's deposition at his bedside instead of bringing him into court.

"Purnell is shamming sickness for public sympathy," said Prosecutor George H. Bookwalter.

"I never thought he would take the stand but I suppose the damaging testimony in the past fortnight has thrown Purnell into a panic."

"We will demand Purnell's physical examination by three disinterested out of town physicians if they claim he is too sick to appear on the stand," Bookwalter said.

OLD TIME RELIGION BAPTIST PROBLEM

CHICAGO, May 31.—Faced by one of the biggest Modernist-Fundamentalist fights in years, thousands of Baptists gathered in Chicago today for the annual convention of the northern church.

The question of "old fashioned" religion was to enter the floor of the convention as a result of resolutions adopted by a committee of the Baptist Bible Union of North America, appointed last week by that organization to "devise ways and means of combatting the encroachments of a predatory and tyrannical oligarchy" within that body.

The resolution demanded the submission to the membership of all Baptist churches the question of "open communion," involving baptism by any other rite than immersion and the expenditure of foreign mission funds in support of missionaries with modernist tendencies.

Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the Bible Union, was confident the resolution would be adopted.

LINEMAN DIES FROM ELECTRICAL BURNS

The body of John W. Sowers, 37, 1353 N. Fifth St., Columbus, who died Sunday in Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, from injuries suffered last Wednesday when he came in contact with a high tension wire at the Southwest Portland Cement Co., Osborn, was taken to his home in Columbus, Sunday.

The body will be taken to Nelsonville for the funeral. Mr. Sowers, who was a lineman, was working on a pole near the cement plant when he came in contact with the wire leading to the plant. His left arm, shoulder and left side of his chest were severely burned.

His widow, Mrs. Mertie Sowers; a daughter, Ruth; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sowers; four brothers, George, Awer, Clarence and Henry and two sisters, Mrs. Andrew West and Mrs. John Nutter, all of Columbus, survive.

WILE SAYS:

Kellogg Cleared
Lindbergh Again
Caudel's Book
And Mrs. Coolidge

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927

WASHINGTON, May 31.—It looks very much as if one Frank Billings Kellogg were shortly going to be able to chant "I told you so." The secretary of state, as all the world knows, has been a persistent and consistent opponent of recognizing Soviet Russia because of Communist propaganda in the United States—and against the United States.

When Kellogg successfully refused to permit Countess Karolyi, Mr. Saklatvala and Mme. Kolontay to tarry on American soil, President Coolidge's premier was abused and ridiculed up hill and down dale by persons who accused him of "seeing red" without rhyme or reason.

Events in London strongly indicated that the United States has been wiser than its European friends in stubbornly ostracizing Communism and all its works. If the state department makes public the chapter-and-verse evidence of Red activities in North and South America, which the British are understood to have seized in their raid of Soviet headquarters in London, some of the administration's critics are likely to take refuge in a discreet silence. In boycotting Communist Russia, Messrs. Coolidge and Kellogg stand precisely where President Wilson and Harding and Secretaries Lansing, Colby and Hughes stood.

One of the "best sellers" ever published by Uncle Sam is a seventy-five page booklet entitled "Trade Routes and Shipping Services," now in circulation over the world overseas. It is terse and timely history of the American mer-

FOREST FIRES RAGE

TOKYO, May 31.—Raging along a twenty-five mile front, forest fires were reported sweeping over Saghalin today. Several persons, unaccounted for, were believed to have been burned to death. Many houses lying in the path of the fires were destroyed.

STARS AGREE TO DISAGREE

Marie Prevost, famed movie cutie, and her matinee idol husband, Kenneth Harlan, have separated, breaking up what was regarded in Hollywood as an "ideal marriage." Friends explain that incompatibility, not a third party, is responsible. Photos show Marie and Harlan embracing on their wedding day, and Miss Prevost in closeup.

PARADE AND CEMETERY PROGRAM HONORS XENIA'S SOLDIER DEAD

Address By Rev. W. N. Shank Pays Tribute To Military Heroes—Impressive Parade Precedes Ceremonies.

Xenia paid reverent homage to its war dead in simple but impressive Memorial Day exercises at Woodland Cemetery Monday afternoon, preceded by the usual parade in which all patriotic organizations of the city and many civilians participated.

A friendly sun smiled down during the afternoon in contrast to the morning threat of a rainstorm and the city gave itself over to patriotic consecration.

Without delay, the procession moved down E. Main St. at 2:30 o'clock led by members of the Police Department.

Following in the line of march were officers of the parade, which W. N. Barnes was grand marshal. Other military and patriotic

OHIO LEGISLATURE RESUMES SESSIONS

COLUMBUS, O., May 31.—Members of the Ohio Legislature will reconvene, in both the senate and house, here this afternoon for a brief session marked by adoption of a motion to adjourn sine die, if plans announced by legislative leaders are carried out.

Legislators on hand early today declared they did not expect the solons to take any action today relative to the Myers bill, recently enacted, increasing the state excise on gross premiums of foreign insurance companies doing business in Ohio from 2 1/2 to 3 per cent, or to attempt to re-pass over Governor V. Donahey's veto any of the items blue-penciled by the governor from the general appropriations bill, including $126,000 for operating the state library from July 1 next, to Jan. 1, 1929, and $500,000 for construction of secondary roads.

MOB ATTACKS AUTOIST

CLEVELAND, O., May 31.—Police, using blackjacks, rescued a motorist from an angry holiday mob after his car had struck a five year old boy here during the heavy Memorial Day traffic. The boy was internally injured and is believed to have a fractured skull. The driver was later exonerated.

organizations in the line of march included: Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, Lieutenant Ozni Cornwell, commanding; O. S. and S. O. Home Battalion and Cadet Band; Company L Band; Lewis Post, Sons of Veterans, G. A. R., and other soldiers, Spanish American, American Legion and other World War veterans, the Boy Scouts, D. A. R., and the G. A. R. W. R. C., auxiliary to the American Legion and D. of V. in automobiles. Citizens in autos and the Fire Department brought up the rear.

Simplicity marked the exercises at the W. R. C. monument at Woodland Cemetery, the ceremony opening before a huge crowd with the memorial to the unknown dead by Lewis Relief Corps No. 29, and music by a choir of nine voices. Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was given this year by Miss Faye Cavanaugh, and after another song by the choir, the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church, who delivered the Memorial Day address, was introduced by Dr. Ben R. McClellan, State Senator J. Eugene Roberts, Youngstown, also talked briefly.

"America" was sung by the audience and the exercises closed with the sounding of "taps" by a firing squad from J. P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion.

In memory of the living and dead soldiers of all wars, flowers were strewn at the G. A. R. mound in charge of the auxiliary of the American Legion.

Preceding the exercises at Cherry Grove Cemetery with Dr. H. R. Hawkins as master of ceremonies, a parade formed on E. Main St. and moved at 1:30 o'clock, in charge of Charles Young Camp and John Roan Post, No. 517, American Legion, in which colored patriotic and veterans organizations as well as civilians took part.

Impressive services were also held in Yellow Springs and Osborn Monday.

Chase Stewart, Springfield attorney, was the principal speaker at services in Yellow Springs. Due to rain which interrupted the program at the cemetery, the assemblage adjourned to the opera house where the services were completed.

Services at Osborn and Fairfield were in charge of George E. Dignam Post, No. 526 American Legion. Memorial services were held at the Methodist Church with the address given by Lieut. J. L. Stromme, preceded by a parade, after which the procession again formed and marched to the cemetery where the Legion conducted its ritual around the grave of a fallen comrade.

HONG KONG, May 31.—A Russian agitator, organizer and director of a Soviet peasant corps, was captured at Pooning, reports received here stated today. The Communist leader was first taken to Swatow, but will be brought to Canton for trial.

SEVERAL HURT WHEN DEPUTIES PROTECT JAIL AGAINST MOB

Alleged Slayer Of Five
Sought By Angry
Crowd

TAMPA, Fla., May 31.—National guard troops were ordered out early today to protect the county jail here which was stormed during the night by a mob seeking B. F. Levine, alleged confessed slayer of five persons.

The soldiers were called on at 3 o'clock this morning after a dozen persons had been wounded, one probably fatally, in an exchange of shots with deputies inside the jail.

Four local companies of the National Guard patrolled the vicinity of the jail today with machine guns mounted on the four corners approaching the jail. National Guard companies from Lakeland and Bartow were enroute to Tampa, having been ordered out by Governor John W. Martin shortly after the state's attorney here had appealed to the executive for aid to quell the riots.

Despite assertions of Sheriff Hiers that Levine, alleged to have confessed he battered Mr. and Mrs. Herman Merrell and three of their children to death while they slept, had been spirited away to an unnamed destination, crowds began gathering before the county jail here last night.

By midnight the mob had swelled to several thousand persons. Armed with a huge timber that resembled a telegraph pole, a group of men advanced on the jail and began battering at a wall in an effort to gain entrance. The police on hand who sought to interfere were quickly overpowered.

Deputies inside the jail hurled tear bombs at the storming mob outside but without effect and the thing opened after the men with the huge piece of timber had battered a large hole through one of the brick walls.

Reports regarding the number of wounded conflicted today, an even dozen were reported to have been struck by the several thousand shots fired during the riot. A man named Pittman was reported killed but police and others could not definitely confirm this. The dead body of a deputy hanging over the wall of the jail also was reported seen by spectators.

When the mob seemed in complete control this morning despite the combined efforts of the police, fire department and deputy sheriffs, the state's attorney telephoned Governor Martin for aid.

The executive immediately ordered the militia in Tampa and directed military heads in Lakeland and Bartow to march to Tampa immediately. Their men came in the wake of the Cleveland mob last week when an intruder entered the home of Herman Merrell, a carpenter, and fatally injured him and his wife and three young children. A fourth child, a few-weeks-old infant, also was badly hurt by the intruder but remains alive.

Levine was taken in custody shortly after and after several severe grillings he was said by police to have confessed to the crime.

CONCENTRATE JAP TROOPS IN CHINA

TOKYO, May 31.—Increased concentration of Japanese soldiers in China was believed near today. The tide of battle is turning against the Mukden troops, upon whom Japan is relying for protection of her citizens in Shantung, Consul General Yata at Tsingtao reported today.

Two thousand Japanese soldiers have already been detailed to Tsingtao. Two additional battalions of 2,000 men will be sent to Tientsin soon, it was believed.

The disturbance in China is reflected here, not only in the busy ministries of war and navy, but also in the general alarm for safety of Japanese citizens. The emperor, personally, is watching the dispatch of the Manchurian garrison to Tsingtao, and today granted audience to General Suzuki, chief of staff, for a report on the progress of events in north China.

INJURED AUTO RACE DRIVERS IMPROVE

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—The condition of Jules Ellingboe of Memphis, Tenn., and Henry Kohler, of St. Charles, Ill., injured in the 500-mile Memorial Day automobile race here, was slightly improved today.

Physicians said both men had fair chances for recovery.

Ellingboe is suffering from a crushed chest and internal injuries. Kohler has a probable fractured skull.

Country Club Members Enjoy Holiday Party

Favored with ideal weather during the entire day, Memorial Day festivities at the Xenia Country Club were carried out with huge success of the day was one of the most delightful in the history of the club.

MOHAMMEDAN RELIGION STUDIED AT SOCIETY MEET

Mrs. J. G. Dixon cordially received the Women's Missionary Society of the First U. P. Church at her home on S. Detroit St., Friday afternoon, Mrs. E. C. Moorman presided and Mrs. E. H. Carruthers, in the absence of Mrs. Lytle, led the devotion, with the assistance of Mrs. T. H. Bell and Mrs. J. C. Marshall.

After the regular transaction of routine and new business roll call was answered with facts from the Mohammedan religion, prepared by Mrs. Elizabeth Lewis and Mrs. George Goodman.

A play, "Tahla," was given in the form of a dialogue between a Mohammedan bride, Mrs. E. W. Waddie and a schoolmate, Mrs. E. R. Andrews.

Mrs. J. P. White was in charge of the program, from chapters four, five and six of the study book, "Moslem Women." Questions and discussions enlivened the program. Mrs. R. H. Nash, Mrs. Adda Bailey, Mrs. C. H. Ervin, Mrs. George Wheeler taking part.

A musical selection was given by Mrs. John Davidson and Mrs. W. J. Cherry, after which Mrs. J. P. White repeated the same in the Arabic language.

The meeting closed with prayer.

MARRIED QUIETLY AT PARSONAGE HERE

Mr. Paul F. Peterson and Mrs. Edna Robinson were married at the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. W. N. Shank officiating, Saturday evening. The Rev. Mr. Shank used the beautiful ritualistic single ring ceremony.

The couple will reside in Xenia and have the best wishes of their friends.

FORMER GREENE COUNTY GIRL MARRIED SATURDAY

Informal announcement is being made of the marriage of Wileta Smith, Dayton, formerly of Old Town, and Mr. John Johnston, of Dayton, which took place Saturday morning at Kintucky.

They will reside with the bridegroom's parents, in Dayton, until their home is completed. Mrs. Johnston has been employed at the Mercantile Co., Dayton.

INFORMAL PARTY

A group of friends was delightfully entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lamme, near Bellbrook, Friday evening. After luncheon, the evening was spent in dancing, games and contests. Music was furnished by the W. D. W. Orchestra.

Mrs. Fred Stephens and Miss Mary Combs left Tuesday for Cleveland, O., to attend the wedding of Miss Marie D. Stephens.

Mrs. Otis Smith and Ralph Smith, W. Main St., Mr. and Mrs. Ray Smith, W. Third St., spent the week end in Huntington, W. Va., with friends.

Miss Mary Gretsinger, who was called here by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Anna Gretsinger, E. Third St., left Monday for Portsmouth, O., to attend the closing ceremonies of the school, where she teaches.

Miss Mary O'Dea, S. Detroit St., spent Decoration Day in Urbana.

Mr. Jack Rood and Mr. Everett Keith, Columbus, were week end guests of Miss Lucille Beatty, and Miss Dorothy Johnson, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Beatty, N. Detroit St.

Mr. Jack Rood and Mr. Everett Keith, Columbus, with Miss Lucille Beatty and Miss Dorothy Johnson, this city, attended the races at Indianapolis, Ind., Memorial Day.

CITY BRIEFS

The Rev. F. H. Landgrave, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene is confined to his home on W. Second St., with an attack of intestinal grip.

The regular meeting of the Cedrine Club has been postponed until next week, it was announced Tuesday.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Gilbert Newsome, Yellow Springs, underwent a tonsillectomy in this city Tuesday.

Merle Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gary, Jamestown, R. R. 1, underwent an operation for appendicitis at McClellan Hospital, Tuesday morning.

Xenia relatives and friends have received invitations to the thirty-second annual commencement of St. Joseph's College, Collegeville, Ind., June 8 and 9, when Paul P. Gallagher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gallagher, this city will graduate.

The Xenia Delphian Chapter will meet Tuesday evening with Mrs. C. O. Nybladh, N. King St.

Frank B. Turnbull, near Cedarville, is seriously ill with pneumonia. Mrs. Turnbull is also ill and it is thought she, too, is suffering from pneumonia.

CATTLE BREEDERS PICNIC THURSDAY

The Aberdeen-Angus Cattle Breeders' Association of Ohio, will be entertained by the Greene County Aberdeen-Angus Cattle Breeders' Association, Thursday, June 2, with a picnic at the Clark's Run School, north of Xenia. The picnic spot is located at the south end of Meadowbrook Stock Farm, owned by O. E. Bradute, former state and national president of the Farm Bureau Federation.

After a basket dinner at noon, the breeders will inspect the herds of O. E. Bradute and son, at Meadowbrook Farm, F. B. Turnbull, Cedar Dell Farm, Walter Ferguson and Ernest Hutchison, all within a mile of the picnic grounds. All breeders of Aberdeen-Angus cattle in the state, together with their families are invited to the picnic and are asked to bring a basket dinner.

Messenger, physician in charge, was assisted by Mrs. H. A. Hoffman, Mrs. James D. Adair, Mrs. J. O. McDorman, Mrs. Karl R. Babb, and Mrs. J. H. Whitmer. J. H. Whitmer and Ellsworth Weaklin assisted by transporting the children.

MAYOR'S COURT

FORFEIT BONDS
Four motorists were arrested over the week-end by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, charged with exceeding the speed limit, and all forfeited $5 bonds when they failed to appear in the mayor's court.

Those arrested were: Andrew Burr, A. K. Frederick, E. S. Pendey and Harley Clark.

AT LEAST HE WON'T BE COLD

NEW YORK.—Life has added one more straw to the burden of Miss Peggy Darling, typewriter player in the business band. Her mother and sister died recently, she lost her job, and now, to crown it all, she has lost her poodle, inseparable companion for ten years. The dog will eat only when fed by hand, and she fears it will starve. It had no license but was clothed, when last seen, in a black silk cape, fastened by a gold pin. It wore no other jewelry.

Do It NOW and Avoid this

Collection of the last installment of 1926 taxes is now in progress at the County Treasurer's office under the supervision of Treasurer Frank A. Jackson, and as taxes must be paid before June 20, earlier payments will convenience both the tax-payer and the county office.

"Don't put it off until the last minute this year," Treasurer Jackson advises tax-payers.

During the week of June 13, either the treasurer or a representative of his office, will be stationed at various points over the county, assisting property owners in making returns, without the inconvenience of coming directly to the office in the Court House.

MODERNISTS CAPTURE CONTROL OF PRINCETON SEMINARY AT ASSEMBLY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—With the modernist-fundamentalist controversy over control of the Princeton seminary apparently settled in favor of the modernists, the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church was settling back into routine discussions today.

After three hours of impassioned debate, the liberal faction succeeded in passing a resolution which will place reorganization work at the Princeton seminary under one board. The fundamentalists were also defeated in their attempt to elevate to a higher position Dr. J. Gresham Machen, ultra-fundamentalist member of the Princeton faculty.

Leaders of the Lord's Day Alliance announced today their intention of endeavoring to get support of the Presbyterians for rigid and absolute observance of Sundays. The Alliance hopes to make the Sabbath "blue" by securing passage of laws to prevent motion picture shows, ball games or other amusements and to prohibit the conduct of any business not absolutely essential on Sunday.

XENIANS KEPT BUSY AT CHURCH MEETING IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Rev. James P. Lytle and Herman W. Eavey, who are representing the United Presbyterian Presbytery of Xenia at the General Assembly in session at Washington, D. C., have faced a busy program of work, together with other commissioners.

The Rev. Mr. Lytle is serving on the special committee on Home Missions and Mr. Eavey is serving as a member of the committee on nominations. The assembly is in session morning, afternoon and evening, while the committees meet as called by the chairman before and after these sessions.

Special matters include reorganization of certain boards of the church, relocation of the Board of Ministerial Relief, publication of the new Psalter-Hymnal, working out some solution for properly financing the missionary work of the church abroad and the complete reorganization of the General Council.

The Xenia delegates have, however, found time to see a few points of interest including the Cathedral on St. Albans where repose the bodies of Woodrow Wilson and Admiral Dewey, a trip to the Arlington National Cemetery and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and a personally escorted visit to the President's yacht, the Mayflower, through the courtesy of Chaplain R. W. Shrum, a fellow student with the Rev. Mr. Lytle at Princeton. President Coolidge received the delegates at the White House where his picture was taken with that of the visitors. The commissioners are to be given a trip on Saturday afternoon to Mt. Vernon. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Galgowsky arrived in Washington Friday and remained until Monday. The Xenians were happy to greet Dr. D. D. Dodds of Oakmont, Pa., who was pastor of First Church, Xenia, for a number of years. Mrs. James P. Lytle visited relatives and friends in New York City, Brooklyn and Palmerton, Pa., and joined the Xenia party at Washington Monday.

An alliance founded on mutual admiration has sprung up between Charles Lindbergh and Louis Bleriot (above). Bleriot was the Lindbergh of his day, being the first man to fly across the English Channel, a feat regarded as certain of fatal results at the time he did it.

TABLET HONORING FOUNDERS OF HOME TO BE PRESENTED THERE

With impressive and appropriate ceremony, a handsome tablet will be presented to the O. S. and S. O. Home, Wednesday afternoon, by the Women's Relief Corps, of Ohio and the G. A. R. Details of the program are still being worked out by committees in charge.

The tablet is being placed in honor of veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, who organized the home shortly after the close of the Civil War.

The tablet was cast at the Buckeye Iron and Brass Works, Dayton, and bears the following message:

"This tablet is erected in honor of our beloved veterans of the Civil War, 1861-1865, the Grand Army of the Republic, department of Ohio, who organized this 'home' in 1869, and by their patriotic effort provide for the future protection and education of their children and the children of all wars, whose faith served in the defense of the United States of America."

"Ruthford B. Hayes, Gov. of State."

"Maj. Gen. Warren Kiefer, Department Commander."

"George W. Collier, J. A. Chase, A. G. Myers, D. B. Corwin, and Capt. William Earnshaw."

"Board of Control."

"Rev. P. P. Ingalls, president; Gen. H. G. Armstrong, secretary."

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

I have been watching the results of constipation for forty-seven years, since I began the practice of medicine back in 1875, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests, the fundamentals of causes and relief in this common ailment are unchanged.

No matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting as close to nature as possible, hence my remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written me to that effect.

Recently there has been a new wave of drastic physics. Calomel, a mercurial that salivates and loosens teeth, has been revived; salts which draw vital fluids from the body and thin the blood, causing rheumatic aches and pains; coal tar (phenolphthalein) disguised in gum or candy form, that poisons and irritates the tissue of the stomach, intestine and bowel, causing skin eruptions. In a practice of forty-seven years I never saw a reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without gripping and damage to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It ruins strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take a teaspoonful that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. The cost is only about a cent a dose. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. —Adv.

NATIONAL HEROES

Memorial Day this year found the nation paying tribute to the thinning ranks of Civil War heroes even as it proclaimed the arrival in England of another national hero, Captain Charles Lindbergh.

While ceremonies were being held in countless cemeteries for the heroic war dead of a country that was wrested from the primeval state, created, preserved and maintained through the heroic deeds of its dauntless youth, another youth, slim, boyish and modest, was writing a new chapter to America's romantic and adventurous history.

The contrast is the story of America itself. Founded on a desire for liberty and freedom that burned so fiercely that it caused brave men to dare the dangers of savages, distress and physical discomfort, it has come down to the present generation as a heritage from the past, built on the blood of martyrs to patriotism and preserved in a like manner against attacks from without and within.

Lindbergh, fortunately, is just as we would have him be. We like to think that the spirit of America is romantic, adventuresome, gay but tempered with modesty. Lindbergh's air voyage recommends his adventuresome and romantic spirit. His attitude in the face of the acclaim that has been accorded him in Europe bespeaks his modesty. If the honors bestowed upon him do not turn his head, which appears unlikely, America will not be ashamed to hold up this young man as a model for its youth. In him lives the spirit of America's great.

The Theatre

By WILLIAM PARKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 31.—Improvidence and the "misery sack" are rapidly disappearing among the motion picture folk. The "misery sack" is a heritage of theatrical people since the days when they were strolling minstrels and troubadours. It is a small leather sack hung by cord from the neck and contains the actor's savings, his "ace in hole" when the theatrical company found itself stranded a long way from home.

Here are some of the prominent film players who are now in trade.

Clara Bow, famous for exemplification of "It," owns and personally directs a cleaning and drying establishment in Hollywood; Betty Bronette, the winsome "Peter Pan" deals in real estate; the petite Brunette Bebe Daniels, has built and sold a number of apartment houses and homes; Esther Ralston, the most striking blonde of them all as well as the patrician Florence Vidor are extensive operators in real estate.

Believe it or not that irresponsible funmaker Wallace Beery is a member of the advisory board of the Bank of Italy, president of the Ponds Development company, and owns two large ranches; his fun-making partner, Raymond Hatton owns a 7,000 acre ranch on an island off Mazatlan, Mexico; Tom Meighan owns Florida and Long Island realty and a lot of automobile stock; Adolphe Menjou has invested in income property.

Cecil De Mille is vice-president of the Bank of America; a director of the Bank of Italy, a partner in a hotel, a shoe store, a canned food factory, a milk bottle factory, an apoon salt deposit in Death Valley, and has made more money out of real estate than films.

Tom Mix raises cattle; Agnes Ayres owns a butcher shop; Sada Cowan, the writer, a florist shop; Raymond McKee, a restaurant; Viola Dana and her sister Shirley Mason, a beauty shop; George K. Arthur, a barber shop; Conrad Nagel, a chicken ranch; Madge Bellamy, a dress shop; Ben Bard, a gas station; a tailor shop and compass music; Huntley Gordon, a hosiery shop; Russell Simpson, an iron foundry; Monte Blue, Donald Crisp, Samuel Goldwyn and John McCormick, husband of Colleen Moore, are directors of the Bank of Italy.

EX-FILM STAR AS INVENTOR

James Carrigan, who deserted the movies to turn inventor, has produced a new loud speaker. Two cylinders of different sizes, enclosed at one end by a conical diaphragm, and vibrated simultaneously by an electro-magnetic unit such as is used in the ordinary loud speaker, are said to reproduce the entire scale.

THE COUNTRY'S GOING TO THE DOGS

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

WHY THE RICH ARE RICH

I happened to be in the office of a wealthy business man the other day and overheard a conversation he was having with the manager of his farm.

The big boss had just been looking over a stack of bills for labor and supplies at the farm before ordering his secretary to write out checks for them. His eye chanced to alight on an item of "12 files, at ten cents each—$1.20."

That charge might have seemed innocent enough to you or me, but this successful man of affairs was instantly aroused to indignation.

Pulling his glasses down to where he could look over the top of them, he glared somewhat scornfully at his farm manager, and, shaking an index finger, by way of punctuation, he said, "There isn't a thing selling at ten cents apiece which can't be bought for a dollar a dozen. If you have bought a dozen files at $1.20 when you could have gotten the same thing for a dollar, you wasted twenty cents of the money needed for the transaction. I can't afford to throw away twenty per cent of my money myself, and I don't like to delegate such wastefulness to others."

"Well, I was busy at the time," faltered the farm manager, "in a hurry to get back to my job, and—"

"So long as you work for me," interrupted the boss, "you mustn't be too busy or in too much of a hurry to save me twenty per cent whenever opportunity offers. Most people," he went on to remark more calmly, "are glad to make four or five per cent on their money in twelve months. In my own business I operate on a four per cent basis. That is, I'm satisfied if I average four per cent on each transaction. But here you had a chance to make twenty per cent and didn't do it."

See? The rich grow rich because of a gift for infinite watchfulness, even about small details. Small wonder that they get ahead.

A drug store proprietor tells me that wealthy people are always the keenest shoppers. If he offers for sale an article obtainable at a lower price in a cut-rate store down the street, the prosperous customers are sure to kick, but the fellow who needs to save the difference is more likely to pay the price asked without a murmur.

It is logical enough that the rich man should be far more careful about his money than a poor man.

Carefulness is what made the one rich, and carelessness is what kept the other poor.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, May 31.—Jennie MacGregor hails from Nova Scotia. She owns up to twenty-six summers and is lovely as a Peri in a brunette, Canadian way. Her eyes are wide, with long-lashed, lashes. She has shell-like ears, and all that sort of thing.

At 4 o'clock the other morning she and a "lady friend," and the "lady friend's" husband, were seated in a taxicab drawn up at the curb on upper Broadway. A debate was in progress. Resolved: That a taximeter is a mechanical Jesse James.

The driver was supporting the negative end of the argument in what printers call "32-point Old English."

The debate had reached a bitter, almost acrimonious stage, when Patrolman McGillicoolley happened along.

"What's the argument?" queried the policeman, in his rich, southern drawl.

They told him.

He pondered for a brief instant, and then addressed Miss Jenny MacGregor's "lady friend's" husband.

"Pay this man what's comin' to him an' leave him depart. This ain't no time o' th' mornin' to be in th' street arguin'."

The fare was paid and the taxi man drove away; but before departing Miss MacGregor lingered to present Patrolman McGillicoolley with a little verbal picture of just how he shaped up in her eyes.

The lady from Nova Scotia stroked with a broad brush.

"Aw, g'wan!" replied McGillicoolley, not relinquishing for an instant his marvelous power of felicitous repartee. "G'wan! Best it!"

When the average woman owns a wall paper, it is usually in her husband's name. Jennie MacGregor, "All's well that ends well."

NEW NEIGHBORS

THE new house, building just across the way, is finished, and the folks are moving in. They're cleaning up the scraps of wood today, and the new grass is showing, pale and thin.

What kind of people are they? No one knows. They have three children and their name is Brown. They look respectable and wear good clothes. They're here to stay, with business in the town.

Their furniture looked just about like ours. When they unloaded. Decent, good, but worn. It's a good sign to see those ferns and flowers. Her curtains are nice; one's mended where it's torn.

Just wait a minute—call it fair or foul, I have a minute never yet proved wrong I went and waved at her with my dish-towel— And say, she waved right back! Yes, they "belong!"

Did you READ it?

Here are six questions dealing with news events of the past few days which have been reported in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican. Can you answer them accurately? If you can, you may claim credit as a really intelligent reader; but if you fail, that means you merely skim the news, as so many people do. Answers on Classified Page.

QUESTIONS

1. What war department official escaped uninjured from an airplane accident? Who was in the plane with him?
2. What southern city was threatened by fire? In what section did the fire originate?
3. What head of a great religious organization has denounced bathing beauty contests? What particular contest?
4. Where was a woman's world fair held recently? By whom was it opened?
5. From what zoo was snake serum recently transported by automobile to save the life of a man bitten by a rattler? Where did he live?
6. What officials of what state are accused of violating the dry law? For what purpose?

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"In this country there has developed a coddling of criminals in capital cases and execution is delayed months, and sometimes years, until there surrounds the criminal an aspect of quasi-martyrdom."

—Justice Townsend Scudder.

"There is no finer page in the history of civilization than that which records the advance in medical science. The heroism of those who have worked with deadly germs and permitted themselves to be inoculated with disease, to the end that countless thousands might be saved, was less spectacular but no less far-reaching than that on the battlefield or of an isolated rescue from a burning building or a sinking ship."

—Calvin Coolidge

"That compulsion drives all is clear. We must accept the heredity that we are born with; we must grow older as the years pass; we must face life's unforeseen troubles that break on us like water through a burst levee, and at last we must die."

—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick

"For a critic of church and clergy in these days to employ the same dastardly method of blackening the personal character of the representative of unwelcome opinions which the church itself has often employed in dealing with heretics is certainly nothing short of despicable."

—Professor David S. Muzzey

"Players of games feel no responsibility toward the spectators. But authors feel themselves responsible for making their readers understand what is going on. To keep a book at all natural and artistic, and the narrative moving, the author must bank upon the interest and intelligence of his readers. Good and fine books deserve the very best reading that anyone can give them."

—Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A.F. Currier

VITILIGO

It is often difficult to draw a accurate line between neuritis and neuralgia.

Take, for instance, the atrocious pain the back of the thigh and leg, called sciatica; it may show, in the ordinary bedside examination, no clear evidences of inflammation of the sciatic nerve except sensitiveness and pain; but if a portion of the nerve were removed and examined with the microscope very clear evidence of inflammation in the nerve fibers or filaments, each with its separate structure, bound together with cementing material and covered with a protecting sheath, like an electric cord or cable.

Inflammation may destroy a portion of the nerve, but it may be regenerated unless the loss is great. One or many nerves may be involved in neuritis, the destruction of tissue may be slight or extensive, and the trouble may last a few days or many years. The pain of it may be bearable or unbearable—an ache or a stab or just sensitiveness.

The skin may be swollen and glossy, with sweating and a crop of blisters following the track of the nerve. The joints may be swollen, permanently stiffened, and contain fluid. If the nerves are badly injured, the muscles to which they are distributed will shrivel and wither.

If the nerve system in general is involved, the patient may get hysterical or excited or even crazy. The skin may not only be painful; it may have a sensation of burning or tingling or of insects crawling over it.

Instead of being excessively sensitive, the skin may be without feeling, not responding to what would ordinarily give pain.

In those forms of the disease in which many nerves are involved, there is not only withering of the muscles but twitching, bending of the fingers and toes, possibly falling of the nails, grey hair, and other symptoms of bad nutrition.

Causes of neuritis are draughts of air, dampness, heat or cold, cuts and bruises, poisons like lead, arsenic, mercury, opium and alcohol. It may also result from tuberculosis, syphilis, inflammation of the bones, bacterial poisoning in typhoid fever, diphtheria and malaria.

It may come as an epidemic, like beriberi, or with an eruption on the skin like shingles. It may be due to pressure—for instance, the pressure of crutches in the arm pits.

It may begin with a chill and fever, develop slowly or rapidly, may paralyze the muscles of speech, swallowing and respiration and be quickly fatal; or it may be long drawn out and finally cause death from pneumonia or tuberculosis.

Its treatment involves many agencies, some helpful, others questionable or useless. Rest is always an important measure of treatment.

Other measures are moist and dry heat, cold, massage, electricity, vibration, irritants, blisters, light, etc. Drug treatment is sometimes of great importance, especially in relieving pain. Cathartics are often required and must be changed as their efficiency seems to diminish. Nourishing food in abundance must be taken, but indigestion is to be rigorously guarded against.

Sleep is so often irregular that hypnotic drugs may be imperative. The more sleep and food one gets, the better as a rule, will he be able to fight this disease.

How to Achieve Beauty

CONCERNING OVERWEIGHT

Overweight is one of the greatest handicaps against health and physical attractiveness and yet it is something which in most cases can be controlled. It has also been proven that one may materially and without harm to their health reduce their weight, even though a superfluous amount of it may have been possessed for many years.

Eating too much and exercising too little is usually the cause of overweight and normal weight can be attained by reversing the process within limits of safety—these vary with the individual.

Before going on a reducing regime, however, it is essential that you first consult your physician and go through a physical examination to ascertain if the overweight may have been caused by any organic disease. The possibility of diabetes especially in extreme cases of overweight should be carefully determined and in this case your physician will recommend a special diet.

The next step is to determine to what extent you wish to reduce and to decide on the length of time to be devoted to the reducing regime.

Following this is the careful planning of your diet which should be varied from time to time in order to bring about the gradual and sufficient weight reduction and at the same time furnish the body with a sufficient amount of nourishment.

And last but not least, you should know exactly how much exercise you should indulge in and on this reducing diet and in this you should again be guided by the advice of your physician.

Going on a reducing "campaign" does not mean that it is necessary to starve yourself until you really suffer from a hungry feeling, but it does mean that you must control your appetite especially with regard to the amount of starches, sugars and fats consumed, as they are high in food values. In place of these you should eat more fresh fruits, lean meats and vegetables, especially leafy ones such as spinach, beet tops, cabbage and lettuce, as well as the bulky foods which nourish but do not fatten.

In order to know how to gauge your diet, it is necessary for you to be somewhat familiar with the workings of the human system, so tomorrow I will explain this to you briefly and give you a concise explanation of the fundamental amount of food necessary for the body to carry on its work and at the same time help eliminate a certain amount of superfluous flesh without harm to your health. I will also give a few examples of reducing menus which will give you an idea of the regime you can follow if this matter is of interest to you.

WALL PAPER MAKES ROOM COLD OR WARM

By HILDA HUNT

Warmth characterizes the living room pictured above. Though the various pieces of furniture are not in the same period of style, they supplement each other delightfully by being brought into a harmonious whole by the soft pastel shade of the figured wall paper which dispels any possible feeling of a cold formality.

An adaptation of the vertical line is apparent in this design, with its up and down movement tending to heighten the room. This is an important point for rooms with low ceilings. You can always make a room look higher by using a vertical designed wall paper.

Wall paper of today is found in a multitude of pleasing and beautiful color compositions—pale blues, soft green earth, the lacy twining of vine-work, flowering magnolia, cherry and plum blossoms. Summer is transplanted to the walls of rooms heretofore cheerless and inanimate.

transparent lamp vase on the table. The furniture is upholstered in plain fabrics because the walls supply all the necessary design.

Since successful decoration in any room depends upon color, beauty of design, and balance of composition, the use of light pastels or figured wall paper necessitates contrasting simple values in the floor covering. Rugs and lamp shades in which are repeated in the colors used in the room, complete an ensemble of livable love the shelf over the radiator and the lines.

Springfield Tramps Lose To Xenia Reserves 8-6

CYPHERS SETS DOWN VISITORS IN SPITE OF RAGGED SUPPORT

Locals Have Strong Battle To Come Out On Top

Treating the visitors just as disrespectfully as any other club this season, the Xenia Reserves won their sixth consecutive game by defeating the Springfield Tramps 8 to 6 in a contest marked by the heavy hitting of both clubs and a preponderance of errors in the Memorial Day matinee at Washington Park.

Cyphers, Reserve twirler, was hit freely in every inning but the second but received marvelous support in the tight situations and lasted the route, although nicked for thirteen safeties. Hood yielded nine blows, but seven of these were crowded in three innings and the Reaper City pitcher also lacked support in the infield.

Taking everything into consideration, the game was probably the best of the season and the Reserves were hard pressed to pull through a victory.

The Tramps opened the scoring in the first inning on a double by Covington and O'Hara's single. Reserves also pushed a runner around in this frame when Keifer singled, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. C. Scott walked and stole second and Keifer scored after the catch on Durnbaugh's long sacrifice fly to right.

Reserves assumed a lead in the second by scoring twice. Weller was safe at first on an error, went to third on Tangeman's single and scored when the Springfield shortstop made a second wild throw on Cyphers' grounder, the batter reaching first safely. Johnson and Keifer out but Scott's neat single plated Tangeman.

The two-run advantage was short-lived for the visitors tied the score in the third by bunching three hits with a sacrifice. Hood opened with a single and Covington duplicated. Both runners advanced a base on a sacrifice by O'Hara, and scored on a double by Fressinger.

Springfield also scored another tally in the fifth on Fressinger's long triple and Hustlar's single. Reserves won the contest in the last half of the inning by making the most of three errors and by some hard hitting, scoring five runs.

Keifer was safe on an error and stole second. Scott filed out but Durnbaugh singled and Keifer scored on an error by Hood. Durnbaugh plied second and Rader was safe on a fumble, the batter also stealing second. Then three solid doubles in succession by D. Fuller, Weller and Tangeman accounted for the five runs.

The Reserves called it a day as far as scoring was concerned and set to work to hold the lead, a feat which was not accomplished without difficulty for the Tramps kept pecking away at Cyphers' offerings and scored one run in the sixth and their sixth and last tally in the eighth.

In the sixth Swartz singled and Bunk filed out. Childers hit to Fuller and with an easy double play or at least a force out in sight, Rader dropped the second baseman's throw and all hands were safe. The same thing occurred on Hood's bouncer, only this time Fuller was the offender in dropping Rader's throw to second, Swartz scoring. In the eighth Bunk singled but was thrown out at second. Childers was safe on a fumble, stole second and scored on a fielder's choice.

Reserves ran the bases promiscuously, stealing no less than seven sacks. Both teams experienced an off day in the field, Springfield making six misplays while the locals were at fault five times.

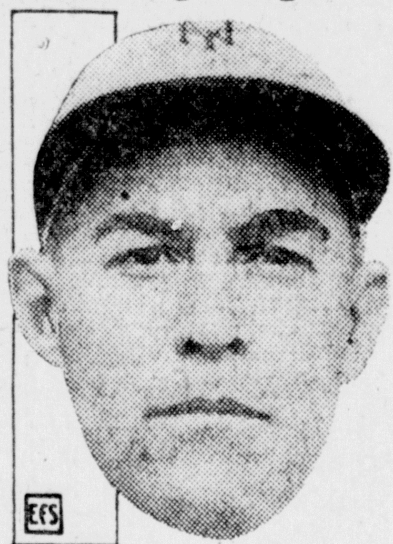

Harshmanville will be Xenia's next opponent in a Buckeye League game next Sunday at Washington Park.

Maniac Bomber

This is probably the only picture in existence of Andrew Kehoe, the madman who blew up the Bath, Mich., school house, causing two score deaths. The contents of Kehoe's home were destroyed in the blast which he himself set, together with the building, and no portrait of the man has been found. This picture, which accurately portrays Kehoe's appearance, was made from a small snapshot showing Kehoe in a group of lumberjacks with whom he once worked in the woods.

Harper, playing his first season as a regular Giant outfielder, is leading the National league in batting and shows no signs of letting up at his present gait.

CLIMB TO SAVE
BOSTON.—When Ernest Sadler climbed the winding stairway in his stable at Limerick, Me., to pitch down some hay for his horse, he found the animal at the mow in the upper part of the building, contentedly nibbling away. Rising with an unusually keen appetite the horse had climbed upstairs to the ladder. Getting down was something else again and required the assistance of six strong men.

BOWERSVILLE WINS OVER JAMESTOWN IN TRIANGLE CONTEST

Bowersville Bayliffs were forced to go fourteen innings before they were able to subdue the Jamestown outfit, 11 to 8 in a Triangle League game at Jamestown Sunday. This is the longest contest to be staged in the league.

But for two wild throws in the fourth and fifth innings Bowersville would have won in the regulation distance. Nute Murrell, after getting two singles and a triple, broke up the sport in the fourth. After Kersey, first up, singled, Cox filed to left. E. Haughey was safe when Cox muffed one and Linkhart fanned. D. Murrell was safe when Cox duplicated his fumble. At this time Nute delivered the winning blow, a nice single, and drove in two runs, Kersey having scored on an error ahead of them.

V. Haughey, former bench warmer for Jamestown played short for the Bayliffs, this youngster going far and wide and accepting eleven chances without a wobble. In ninth and tenth he had two put-outs and three assists, taking one close to second, touching the bag and completing the double play.

Kersey did nice work, allowing but one run in the last nine innings. Jamestown was weak in the pinches. In the eleventh the first man up got on but succeeding batters could not drive him around.

In the twelfth the second man up doubled and still they fluked. In the thirteenth V. Haughey retired the side unassisted. The final stanza reads the first three up and the first three down.

Bowersville will play at Waynesville next Sunday at 3 p. m. Box score:

XENIANS UNHURT AS AUTO IS WRECKED

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Adair, N. Galloway St., escaped injury in an auto accident which occurred four miles north of Wilmington, on the Xenia-Wilmington Pike, Monday evening at 5 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Adair were returning home from Maysville, Ky., when a tire on one of the rear wheels blew out, causing Mr. Adair to lose control of the car. The machine swerved into the left hand ditch and was struck by another car which was being driven toward Wilmington.

The rear of the Adair machine was demolished but the occupants were unhurt. The woman driver of the other car, whose name was not learned, was slightly cut. C. D. Galliett, Washington Ct. H., was the name of the owner of the car, according to Mr. Adair.

MANY ATTRACTED BY GOLF TOURNAMENT

Exceptionally fine weather attracted a great number of entrants for the initial golf tournaments of the season at the Xenia Country Club Memorial Day.

Two "blind handicaps" tournaments were held in charge of the chairman of the tournament committee, one tournament open to men only having thirty entries, and the mixed tourney for men and women, drawing eighteen entries.

After eighteen holes of play, suitable prizes were awarded winners as a result of drawing lucky combinations.

A number of good scores were made during the morning and afternoon and the links were crowded all day. Probably the best gross score was made by Arthur Currie, former Ohio Wesleyan University student, who turned in a card of eighty-two for the two rounds.

Women members of the club served a luncheon at the clubhouse at noon.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed a dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. E. DAUGHERTY, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

BRITISH AIR CROSS CONFERRED BY KING GEORGE UPON FLYER

Capt. Lindbergh answered freely, explaining problems of aerial navigation which he encountered after leaving the Roosevelt flying field just outside of New York City. The king listened attentively while Capt. Lindbergh discussed the future of aviation, especially the possibilities of regular trans-Atlantic commercial service.

The conversation lasted forty minutes at the end of which time the king pinned the air force cross and a ribbon in the lapel of Capt. Lindbergh's coat.

The air force cross has been granted to nine other Americans since the war but to no other non-Britishers.

Capt. Lindbergh left Buckingham palace at 11:20 o'clock and, accompanied by Lieut. Col. Joyce, motored to St. James Palace where the Prince of Wales greeted him and welcomed him to York House.

Although the young air pilot had been up since daybreak he looked fresh and alert as he entered the palace with plaudits of the crowd behind him. He had been steadily "on the go" both on the ground and in the air, but he did not show any signs of fatigue.

Capt. Lindbergh's early morning movements had been conducted with secrecy. His movements were not publicly scheduled consequently he got around the streets unnoticed. It is understood that the royal air force authorities at Gosport took charge of "The Spirit of St. Louis" for dismantling, arrangements having been made through Lieut. Col. Joyce and Sir Samuel Hoare, the British air minister.

Embassy officials tried to keep Capt. Lindbergh's plan secret, professing to have no knowledge of his early morning hop to Gosport.

There is much speculation over the length of Capt. Lindbergh's stay in Europe and the manner of his return home. The plans, all of which have been tentative, were constantly changed.

After completing his London visit Thursday morning, Capt. Lindbergh plans to return to Paris by air. He could go as a passenger upon one of the regular air line planes that operate between Croydon and Le Bourget. He could travel as a passenger with a royal air force pilot, or, as proposed last night, he could go in a borrowed British plane, operating it himself.

The British air authorities at Croydon are tentatively planning an impressive aerial display when Capt. Lindbergh departs. It is proposed to send up a great fleet of airplanes to escort Capt. Lindbergh's machine over the English channel.

Ambassador Houghton expressed deep regret that he had to leave England while Capt. Lindbergh was still a guest at the United States embassy. He explained that he had already made his plans for departure and that, if he waited in London two days more, he would be six days late in arriving in New York owing to shipping delays.

Lindbergh had luncheon at Lloyd's at 1:30 and at 4:30 was taken to the House of Commons as the guest of Lady Astor.

Tonight the Royal Aeronautical Society, the Royal Aero Club and the Society of British Aircraft Constructors will entertain the American youth at a banquet at the Savoy. Five hundred guests have been invited and Lord Thompson, former air minister, will present Lindbergh with a gold cup on behalf of the Daily Mail.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Over a quarrel rent the air. The week following the Ritzie Big-Time Circus was like the calm after the storm. There had been so much excitement before the circus and so much fun afterward as the neighborhood kids were continually asking "How they did this?" and "How they did that?" and "Was the man-eating tiger really a cub?" that the Ritzies found it hard to settle down to their everyday routine.

They had assembled in the little shop to talk things over and make new plans. They probably would have been content to laugh and jest about their big circus success if there had only been enough chairs to go around. As it was, the three boys had had to sit on the floor and found it none too comfortable. Patsy's mother had decided to take back the three old chairs that she had given them as she saw possibilities in painting them and using them for the front porch. So there were only two stools left in their club room, and of course these were given to the girls.

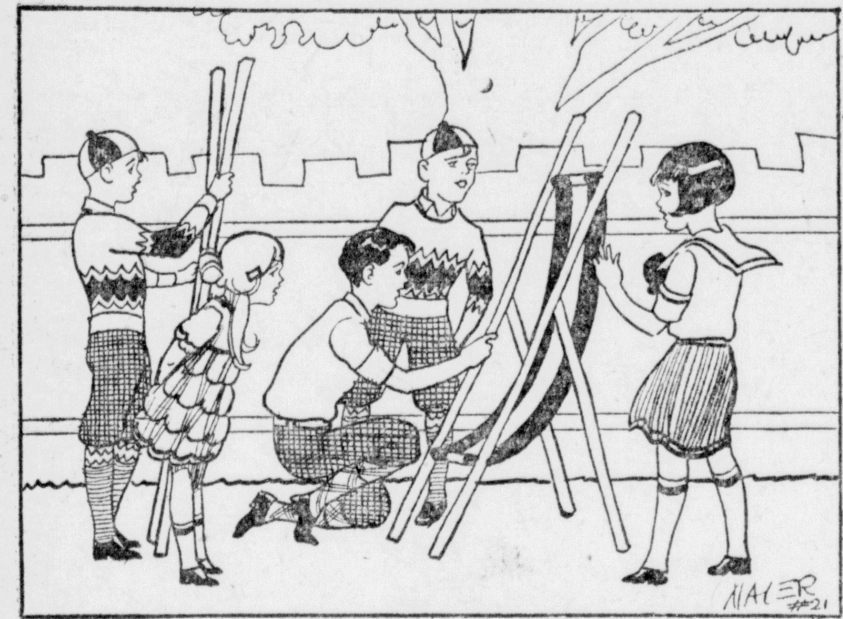

"We've got to have some more chairs," said Marty. "It isn't any at first Marty thought this would prove an incentive to promptness, and indeed it did, but after several mad scrambles had taken place for possession, it was decided that the chair should be awarded by merit.

This worked for a time and the one who had the best suggestion for a party or a game was allowed to use the chair at the next meeting. This happy solution didn't last long, for seeing the wisdom of voting for his own idea and thereby standing a better chance of winning the chair, each Ritzie held that his own idea was the best and things were at a standstill.

"I guess we'll each have to have a canvas chair with our name carved on it," said Marty, quite perplexed at the sudden storms that had broken the peace of the little group—and all over a canvas chair!

So it was decided that each Ritzie should have a canvas chair of his own. Each member was to collect the material for his chair, consisting of the branches and a strip of canvas. A certain afternoon was set for "chair day" when they would all put them together at the same time, with Marty superintend-fun having a meeting when you have to sit on the floor." "Why don't you make a chair," Marty suggested. "Well, do all we can to help." "I've never tried to make a chair. I'm afraid it would be pretty much of a job," answered Marty, thoughtfully.

"Oh, I don't mean a regular chair. I was thinking of a camp chair with a canvas seat," explained Tag.

"Just the thing!" cried Marty, excitedly. "They're comfortable, too. Let's look around for the wood."

A look around soon unearthed some strips of wood which still had their coverings of bark. Marty had rescued these branches from a tree down out in front.

The boys found it a simple task to nail the strips together to form the frame for the chair shown in the illustration. To make the joints firmer, they twisted wires around them. In this way they could feel that the chair wouldn't come to pieces when put to hard use by the club.

They cut a straight piece of canvas from an old awning and nailed it to the top and bottom cross-pieces. This formed the seat of the chair and a very comfortable one, too.

In fact, the new canvas chair became the most popular piece of furniture in the clubroom. Whenever a meeting was called, everyone would make a dash for the canvas chair.

ing the job. Everything went fine, because Marty was always ready to help drive a stubborn nail or untwist a knotted wire, and soon all four chairs were standing in a row with their bright-colored canvas seats swinging in the wind.

The twins set to the task of carving their names on their chairs and Patsy ran off to get paints and a brush to use as her tools. Betty looked helplessly about, wondering how she would ever be able to carve or paint her name on her chair. After a whispered conversation with Marty, she skipped gayly home, while Marty took out his pocket knife and started to carve "BETTY" on the top round of her chair.

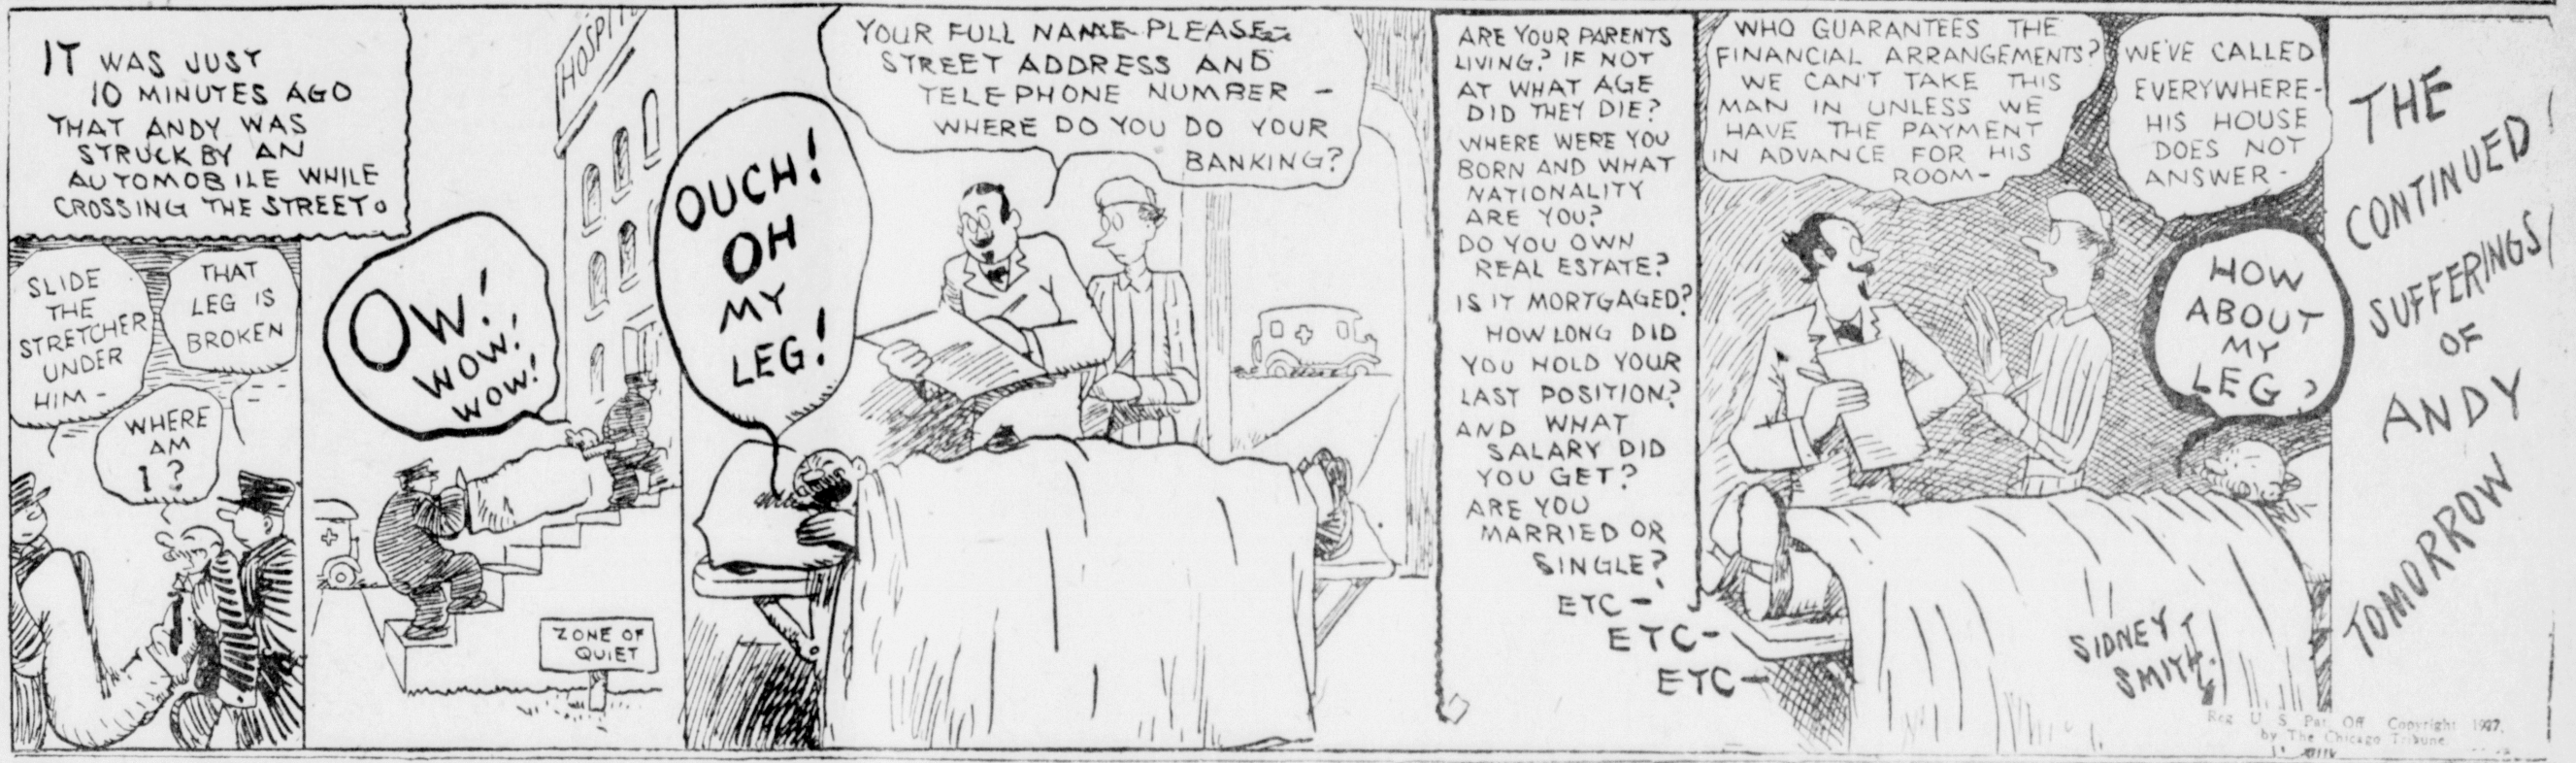

The twins shouted "Betty is Marty's favorite!" teasingly at Marty, until they saw Betty coming across the lawn with a plate of sandwiches, and realized the bargain that he had struck.

The canvas chairs seemed like the most comfortable ones in the world to the Ritzies, as they sunned themselves in them and munching Betty's tasty jelly sandwiches. "They would certainly be an addition to the club-room," they decided.

***

If you need furniture for your play-hut, boys and girls, don't fail to make a canvas chair. You will enjoy it as much as the Ritzies did theirs. They are also great for a camping trip. Take a piece of canvas along and cut your branches after you arrive at the camp site.

TEXT OF MEMORIAL ADDRESS AT WOODLAND PROGRAM MONDAY

Following is the complete address delivered by the Rev. W. N. Shank at the Memorial Day exercises in Woodland Cemetery Monday afternoon:

Sir Walter Scott describes Old Mortality as going through the cemetery of Scotland, chiseling anew upon the tombstones the names that time had well-nigh obliterated. Asked to explain his real for the memory of these worthies, the old man replied that he wished to see the heroes of yesterday march forward side by side with the youth of today. The memorial occasion calls upon us as living to chisel anew the names of our heroes and more especially the principles for which they stood. Ours is a great nation having been forged out of the stalking of intolerance in religion, autocracy in government. We acknowledge our greatness in humility and thanksgiving. We would chisel anew the names of our colonial fathers who, largely through intolerance in religion sought a home of liberty amid the primitive scenes of a new world, enduring the hardships of a pioneering life known only to themselves. The Puritans of the north with their Mayflower compact, taking an exodus from English homes and laws, were truly God led as were the children of Israel under Moses. The Baptists tutored by Roger Williams gave the first religious tolerance so largely practiced by America. The Wallons of New York wrote their life's history into the early life of a great colony. The Covenanters dipped their pens into their own veins and signed a covenant against persecution and helped to found three of our greatest colonies. The Quakers under William Penn held religious tolerance for every one including the Indians. The Roman Catholics named their colony after their beloved Queen Mary and exhibited tolerance far beyond some of their neighbors. The Episcopalians of Virginia gave to the colonies, Washington, Patrick Henry and the Lees. The Huguenots did not deter them from finding an asylum in the sunny clime of the Carolinas. The poverty stricken were not overlooked in the founding of Georgia. The uniqueness of the colonial life welded into the early union is to be known when eighteen languages were spoken along a sea coast of eighteen hundred miles. Other nations had grown out of former governments and civilizations but ours grew out of the very atmosphere of liberty and the spirit of freedom, maintained until the present day, and is far reaching enough to influence the world, needing to be led by righteousness and justice. Autocracy in common life took the form of human slavery, old as the history of the race. The conquered became the property of the conqueror. No greater moment came than to the life of the conquering hero than to return to the scenes of his cheering worshippers, leading his captives, as spoils of war to become slaves.

What through custom and usage became the common practice of any people has taken most often, the mighty upheaval of war and the shedding of blood in revolution to bring about the reformation too badly needed. The evil of human slavery had fastened itself upon the body politic of a fair country until the geographical, economic and racial conditions seemed to demand its continuance. But the laws of humanity and the laws of righteousness surpass economic laws. The strife and compromises through the years are matters of our common history until the great apostle of labor, Abraham Lincoln, with an emancipation proclamation out of the awful furnace of bloody conflict, proclaimed not only four million black people free from human slavery but put labor upon a pedestal of honor such as only the world shall appreciate, as labor assumes the honorable position it justly deserves in the eyes of the world.

Incidentally connected with this mighty movement and a primary cause to its consummation was the secession movement of the great Civil War. What a calamity, not only to our own country but to the world should this have been accomplished! Only a very few of the host of young manhood of the sixties, remain to give us a personal reason, why it was not consummated but have given into our hands, a world power, rich, mighty, powerful and just, unsullied by slavery, where the toiler from the factory and farm might enter his own home, the peer of any man in the world. The Civil War veteran built better than he knew. They gave their lives that not a star should be lost from the flag, and that that flag should be the emblem of a mighty, powerful and just nation and as such the emblem for liberty and freedom from the weakest to the mightiest. We chisel anew their names upon their tombstones and drop flowers as the symbols of our tears that they may walk by the youth of today as an inspiration and that they may appreciate the supreme sacrifice made by them that such an heritage might be ours.

But a few of the Blue and Gray still live and age has wrinkled their brows and soothed their differences until forgiveness is in their hearts as they view the western horizon, and see the pathway that shall lead them to the Cities of the Dead with their comrades lost in battle or since answered the great roll call. Praise and honor for them while they live, roses and tears for them when they answer the last command. "Lest we forget, lest we forget." Hear the subdued orders of the captain as the enemy's vessel is beached and wrecked by superior sailors: "Don't shoot boys, the poor devils are dying."

The world has always had to deal with absolutism in power of an autocrat in government. We think of four autocrats of history, who have been responsible for great wars in time not very remote.

The immense wealth and power of Spain in her best days were controlled by Phillip the Second, one, old miserly stubborn doddard, a sort of religious mule.

Louis of France, a little man wearing high heeled shoes and a powdered wig to give him the appearance of greatness.

Afterwards, this wealth was held by Napoleon of whom the French people say, he was as great as any man can be without principle.

Then the half-witted and stubborn George the Third, who caused the English people to lose the fairest of their possessions.

But what shall we say of him of our own age, who sits alone with his thoughts, protected by a country not his own, stripped of power and command, who struck the world full in the face until it staggered like a drunken man, who filled a sea with poverty stricken countries and millions of bloody dead and wounded, who made life as common dirt and brass more valuable than blood. A modern Dante need only put his ear to the heart of humanity, to hear the ache, the pain, the sorrow and wail by which he may describe a new Inferno.

Through these four years, men cursed, prayed and fought. Was it a nightmare? Ah, it is only too true. The last year of the war, may we say, was the mightiest struggle of all time—it was Gettysburg—with the soldiery of the world in conflict. The fiercest drive of the enemy was the ten, twenty, thirty miles to the gates of the city of Paris. "Backs to the wall," defending the channel ports with seeming defeat and destruction awaiting the Allied forces, when a young gladiator of the west, a son of liberty, a son and grandson of the Blue and Gray, dressed in the livery of the sea, stepped into the arena, bared his breast, loosed his arms, his blood running hot with the enthusiasm of his millions of countrymen and comrades cried, "Back, back, ye howling jackals of civilization." New life came as if born in a night. Salient after salient was bit off. We felt with Shakespeare,

"Night's candles are burned low and jocund day stands tiptoe on the misty mountain top. I must go and live or stay and die."

The fair day of November came like the surrender of Lee at Appomattox when whistles blew, bells rang, tears flowed and thanks given to God. Let other hands write the history of this titanic struggle, we are too near to rightly judge. The veteran of the Civil War clasps with his feeble hand of age, the strong, young hand of the soldier of the World's War, and speaks words of thankfulness that they were able to answer their country's call in war but pray that such fate shall not await other generations. We shall have praise for the living and chisel deeper the names of our country's dead, who hath made our goodly inheritance possible.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED—The entrance of America into the World War finds Phillip Wynne Tracy IV suffering from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natalie Jones, who was the daughter of the Tracy millman, had had a childish engagement which was objected to by both Mr. Jones and Mrs. Tracy.

Phillip becomes interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's. He takes her to luncheon and shortly finds he is falling in love. The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared. Rod and Phillip start for the barracks. Natalie goes to the depot to see them off and in her anxiety to see Phil she ignores Rod entirely. This nearly breaks his heart.

Phillip writes his mother and asks her to be good to Natalie.

Phillip finds he must leave for the southern training camp before seeing his mother again. Here he has a most unusual experience with a nameless girl.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXIX.
ON KITCHEN POLICE.

THE girl, still coughing, stood for a moment while Phil waited uncomfortably for the paroxysm to pass.

As soon as it became a little less she moved toward the window and pulled down the shade. Then she came back and sat down on the side of the bed.

"Gee, you have a terrible cough," said Phil.

"Yes, isn't it?" she answered, looking him, for the first time, straight in the face.

"When I saw you through that screen door, you looked as miserable as I feel," he volunteered.

"Why, what have you got to be unhappy about?"

"Plenty," answered Phil, laconically. "I have just had some terrible news from home. Everything has gone to smash in my family."

The girl laughed.

Phil thought that the sound was worse than a sob.

"Don't you know you're in luck if you even have a family? Can the self-pity, kid, for if you get me started, God help us both."

"You don't mean to tell me that you think you're really unhappy," and she took him in slowly from the tip of his sleek brown hair to the tip of his shiny shoes with an appraising eye.

What she found there she evidently found good to look at, for a look of tenderness came into her eyes that no man had probably seen there for many years.

Then because it takes only a look of sympathy and understanding to unlock the lips of a boy, Phillip Wynne Tracy IV, in that corded cry down there by the border, opened his heart and told this poor, half-starved, flung aside morsel of humanity, the story of his first passion—the story of Lyra Hilliard.

His words came with a rush. The girl sat so still he was not sure she was listening, and finally to cover his own display of feeling to a comparative stranger he stopped in the middle of a sentence, "Gee, I don't even know your name," he exclaimed, "and you're nice, too."

At this the girl raised her face again. Two large tears welled up in her eyes and ran unheeded down her cheeks.

Seeing them, Phillip knew she had heard everything and understood all.

"I am Phillip Wynne Tracy IV," he announced, as though he had made her one of his friends then and there.

"I'm going to send you a doctor."

"Oh, I'm all right. I'll get better or die soon—either one won't make any difference to the world, anyway."

"I'll stop on my way back to camp," he continued, as though she had not spoken.

She turned away her head and he heard her mutter as though to herself: "I have no money to pay a doctor." Then quickly she spoke as though she were afraid he had heard her.

"It is late, Wynne. You should be on your way back to camp."

Phil looked at his watch rather ostentatiously. It gave him a chance to recover from the sound of the name of "Wynne" from the lips of this girl—it was later than he thought. He realized he had to hurry.

Still sticking in the back of his head, however, was that muttered sentence, "I have no money to pay a doctor."

ALMOST turning his back upon her in that little room, he awkwardly took $10 from his pocket and carelessly tried to leave it on the chest of drawers beside the bed without her seeing him doing it.

The girl, who had not missed a move he had made, looked up at him gratefully from the bed where she was sitting, but said nothing.

Phil walked over and picked up one of her hands which, pale and quite beautiful, were lying relaxed in her lap among the folds of her red kimono. He patted it bashfully with the same gentle movement that he had used when he was trying to comfort his mother.

"I'm so glad I found you."

"Good-bye," he said. "I—I'd like to stay and talk with you longer, but I'll be late if I don't hurry, and I'd hate them to put me out of the army."

At this the girl smiled. With a little catch in her breath she exclaimed:

"Don't worry, kid. They wouldn't put anybody as nice as you out of any place."

Phil grabbed his hat and opening the door he rushed for the jitters.

The girl sat for a moment looking through the open doorway where he had vanished. Then she got up wearily, picked up the bill and dropped it in the upper drawer of the chest, walked over to the window and pulled up the shade.

Phil managed to get past the guard, although he was aware that it was about a minute after twelve and he congratulated himself that everything was all right.

He had forgotten, however, about the encounter with Lieutenant Andrews.

Soon he was lying on his camp cot, his eyes wide open in the darkness, wondering how such a "lady" could have come down so low.

The next morning at reveille he was told to report immediately after breakfast to the first sergeant.

He was mystified but he understood when Top Sergeant Muldoon said: "Lieutenant Andrews has reported that you were not in your quarters at midnight. Military discipline must be upheld, Tracy."

Lieutenant Andrews has instructed that you be detailed to kitchen police for three days and that your passes to town be withheld for that time."

Phil started for the camp kitchen, passing Rod on the way.

"Where are you going, Wynne?"

Phil saluted formally: "I have been detailed to kitchen police and am on my way, corporal."

"Damn corporal," said Rod. "Wait a minute."

"Yes, sir," said Phil, snappily, saluting again and coming to "attention," his eyes fairly dancing, for he knew he was getting Rod's goat.

"What were you detailed for, Wynne? You haven't been doing anything, have you?"

"That scurvy shave-tail Andrews caught me flirting with the girl he was at the hotel with last night and he reported I was not in at midnight. I had passed the guard at that time, however, and was on my way to my tent, but, of course, I couldn't say anything."

"The guard may have given me a little leeway, but some one reported I was not in my tent right at the instant of twelve. My passes are revoked for three days, but if Andrews thinks he is going to keep me in camp, damn him—he's got another thing coming."

ALL the morning Phillip Wynne Tracy IV peeled potatoes and onions until he couldn't see out of his eyes, but in the afternoon he had his reward. In cleaning up things he found a fine porterhouse steak that had been laid aside for the officers' mess, and he beat the dog robbers to it.

Having toasted some bread on the top of the camp stove and after having broiled the steak he had been enjoying the best meal he had ever had in camp, when about four o'clock Lieutenant Andrews strolled around to see how that upstart of a Tracy was getting along.

"I'll just show him he can't play any tricks on me," he said to himself.

He found "the upstart" playing another trick, however. He was eating a gorgeous hot porterhouse sandwich and seeming to be enjoying himself very much. Phil came to attention as the lieutenant came up and, of course, the luscious sandwich dropped to the ground. He was happy that there was only a little of it left, however, and he was glad he didn't have to say anything, for his mouth was full. As it was, it was hard work for him not to laugh in the face of his superior officer.

That night he rolled up a blanket with some of his clothes and arranged it in his cot so it would look to the guard passing like a man sleeping with his face to the wall. Then he stole out.

He had planned to go back and see the girl on the narrow street again.

But as he was going down the main street he heard his name called and turning saw an outstretched hand from an automobile. Above it there was the radiant face of Marta Tennis.

Phillip stepped from the curb and grasped the girl's hand.

"I'm so glad I found you," Marta Tennis exclaimed. "I've been driving up and down this street for an hour hoping to do so. I'm just going back home now to pick up mother."

"She is all pepped up with the thought of meeting the son of Anne Tracy, as she calls your mother. We are going out to the country club. Would you like to go with us?"

"I'll be very glad to go, Miss Tennis."

"It's 'Marta' to you, you know," said the girl, smiling. "Come on, get in and we'll find mother, and don't you worry, we'll get you back to camp in the car."

Mrs. Tennis, too, was as cordial as possible when Phillip met her and had all sorts of questions to ask about his mother. When he told her that she had gone to Washington to work in the National Red Cross and mentioned Major Aukland, she exclaimed: "Oh, I remember Major Aukland. He was devoted to Anne before she was married, and some one of my friends wrote me that he left for England because he could not persuade her to marry him after your father died."

"Say, Phillip," interrupted Marta, "you certainly are not any one that Lieutenant Andrews would shed his life's blood for, if he found you in the hands of the enemy."

"Why should he? It's only privates that shed their life's blood for officers. No officer has anything in common with a buck private, you know."

"Well, I told him you were a very special buck private, which didn't seem to make things any better. He was so furious that he couldn't see straight when you sent me that note last night. I think if he could have found any regulation that would have permitted it, he would have had you shot at sunrise this morning."

"I'm sure he would," said Phil, smiling. "As it was, he had me detailed for kitchen police, but it was worth it, you know. But let's don't talk about Lieutenant Andrews. I have met my mother's friends and it almost seems like meeting my own mother, and I'm going to have the first dance I've had since I joined the army with the prettiest girl I've seen since I've been a soldier."

"Phillip, you're like your father," said Mrs. Tennis. "He used to have the reputation of paying the nicest compliments of any young man of my day."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Will the daughter of Mrs. Tracy's friend restore Phil's faith in her sex? The next chapter will tell what happens.

AKRON BALLOONS STILL UP

TWO BAGS REPORTED
COVERED 375 MILES
ON EASTERLY WIND

Several Believed To Have
Passed Over Lake
Erie

AKRON, O., May 31.—Officials of the national balloon race which started from here late Monday, today had received reports from two of the fifteen entries, all of which were believed to still be aloft.

The two reporting were Navy No. 1, over Rochester, N. Y., at 7 a. m. and the Detroit No. 1 reported "going strong" over Gratz, Pa., about the same time. Each point mentioned is about 375 miles from Akron, according to officials.

Lieutenant T. W. Settle is listed as pilot of Navy No. 1, with Chief Boatman's Mate George Steelman as aide, and Charles D. Williams, Jr., is listed as pilot of the Detroit No. 1 carrying G. W. Legallen, as aide.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 31.—Flying low and fast before a strong wind, its blue bag shining in a clear sun, a balloon believed to be one of the fifteen which took off from Akron, Ohio, yesterday in the annual balloon race classic, passed here at 8:40 this morning.

The balloon was seen also in Skaneateles and Minna. Although flying low as it passed over the city toward the east, the numbers on the bag were not distinguishable.

AKRON, O., May 31.—According to reports received here this morning, all of the fifteen entries in the national balloon race, which started from here late Monday, were still in the air.

Seven of the big bags were reported near Canada, while the other eight were drifting north-east, over Lake Erie.

When last sighted from here yesterday, the U. S. Navy No. 3, piloted by Lieut. Charles E. Bausch, was reported in the lead. Lieutenant Bausch's balloon was the second to take off.

Little difficulty was experienced by any of the contesting balloons in leaving the ground.

Approximately 40,000 spectators were on hand when the first balloon "weighed off" at 5 P. M. Army No. 1 was the first to cut loose and the Akron Beacon-Journal was last.

CLEVELAND, O., May 31.—If any of the fifteen balloons competing in the national balloon race were flying over the southern Lake Erie region today, they were being favored with clear blue skies and comparatively calm winds, according to the local weather bureau.

A light mist which had been falling from dark clouds early today, cleared away and a bright sun was shining at this time from Akron, the starting point on the greatest national balloon race, in the country's history, stated that all of the huge gas bags were still in the air, so far as could be learned, and that seven of them were believed to be heading into Canada. The other eight were believed to be floating somewhere over Lake Erie.

YOUTH ARRESTED IN SUSPECTED MURDER

CLEVELAND, May 31.—Police here today were holding a suspect as one of two youths who, early this morning carried an unidentified dead girl, believed to be between 25 and 30 years of age, into St. Alexis Hospital, and after talking a few minutes with the nurse in charge, disappeared.

An examination by hospital physicians disclosed that the girl's neck was broken. Her body bore other marks, indicating that she may have been killed while putting up a struggle. A heel was torn from one of her slippers.

The youths were described to police as being about 25 years of age. Although police declared the girl's appearance did not indicate that she had been hit by a hit-skip driver, the suspect was found to have an auto with a bent fender.

VESSEL FIRED ON

HONG KONG, China, May 31.—Using dum-dum bullets, Chinese soldiers fired upon the steamer Kinshan, enroute to Canton, it was reported today. No material damage was done.

Registries of steamers in the Trans-Pacific Service do not list the steamer Kinshan. It is believed to be a vessel in the Chinese coastal trade.

NINE DIE AS FLOODS FOLLOW CLOUDBURST IN KENTUCKY

PRESTONBURG, Ky., May 31.—With nine known dead, scores of homes demolished and hundreds of homeless southeastern Kentucky today was at the mercy of the feeder waters of Big Sandy River in five mountain counties.

Toms Creek took a toll of three lives, all members of one family, at Paintsville, Johnson County, Monday, when two women and a boy drowned as they fell from a log foot-bridge to escape waters which threatened their home. Six were drowned in Letcher County at Roxana and Elsie Coal, while fifteen homes are known to have been destroyed at Wayland, Garret and Fleming near here.

Those reported drowned at Paintsville are: Mrs. Maude Bailey, 40, wife of Dr. T. B. Bailey; Mrs. Agnes Bailey, 50, his mother, and W. R. Bailey, 11-year-old son of the physician.

At Roxana Mrs. Greene Callahan

and her two children and two unidentified men were drowned, while at Elsie Coal Mrs. Chester Fields was a victim of the raging mountain streams.

Telephone service to Whitesburg, seat of Letcher County, has been suspended, and nearby points at Norton, Va., Harlan and Hazard Ky., and Williamson, W. Va., report telephone service into the wind and storm swept region of the mountains has been discontinued.

DARK HORSE WINS ANNUAL AUTO RACE BEFORE CROWD OF 145,000

Purdue University Student Takes Classic With Speed of 97 Miles An Hour—Veterans
All Forced Out

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 31.—George Souders, Lafayette, Ind., twenty-four-year-old former Purdue University student, a rank outsider, piloted his tiny Dusenbergs racer to victory in the fifteenth annual 500-mile Memorial Day classic at the Indianapolis motor speedway before 145,000 spectators.

Souders encircled the two and one-half mile bumpy track 200 times without relief and making only two brief stops, negotiating the distance in five hours, seven minutes and thirty-three seconds for an average speed of 97.54 miles an hour, which failed to equal the track record set in 1925.

KING BENJAMIN TO TESTIFY IN ACTION TO ABOLISH COLONY

May Be Brought Into
Court On Stretcher
At Trial

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., May 31.—"King" Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David, will testify in the state's suit to disclose the colony. It was announced today.

This announcement spiked reports that the cult chieftain would not go on the stand for a scathing cross-examination of questions regarding alleged mistreatment of young girls in the colony.

His condition permitting, "King" Ben will be brought into court on a stretcher to face his accusers. But if he is too ill his deposition will be taken at his bedside in the House of David with lawyers for the state and defense, and newspapermen and others present. W. J. Barnard, defense attorney said.

At the same time the state announced it will fight any move to take Purnell's deposition at his bedside instead of bringing him in to court.

Purnell is shamming sickness for public sympathy, said Prosecutor George H. Bookwalter.

"I never thought he would take the stand but I suppose the damaging testimony in the past fortnight has thrown Purnell into a panic."

"We will demand Purnell's physical examination by three disinterested out of town physicians if they claim he is too sick to appear on the stand," Bookwalter said.

The body of John W. Sowers, 37, 1353 N. Fifth St., Columbus, who died Sunday in Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, from injuries suffered last Wednesday when he came in contact with a high tension wire at the Southwestern Portland Cement Co., Osborn, was taken to his home in Columbus, Sunday.

The body will be taken to Nelsonville for the funeral. Mr. Sowers, who was a lineman, was working on a pole near the cement plant when he came in contact with the wire leading to the plant. His left arm, shoulder and left side of his chest were severely burned.

His widow, Mrs. Mertie Sowers; a daughter, Ruth; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sowers; four brothers, George, Awer, Clarence and Henry and two sisters, Mrs. Andrew West and Mrs. John Nutter, all of Columbus, survive.

BRITISH AIR CROSS CONFERRED BY KING GEORGE UPON FLYER

Received By Premier
Also—Term of Visit
Still Tentative

LONDON, May 31.—For the second time since his arrival in Europe royal honors were conferred today upon Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh in recognition of his epic trans-Atlantic flight when King George conferred upon him the air force cross. The ceremony took place at Buckingham palace where Capt. Lindbergh was the guest of the king.

Earlier in the day the intrepid young American aviator had been received at 10 Downing St. by Premier Stanley Baldwin.

Previous to the ceremony at the premier's official residence, Capt. Lindbergh had flown his famous monoplane ninety miles from the Croydon air field to Gexport, leaving it there to be dismantled and packed for shipment to New York.

Plans for Capt. Lindbergh's return home were still in doubt and belief was expressed that the young aviator would rescind his tentative proposal to sail for home on the United States liner, George Washington, on Thursday, finally taking advantage of President Coolidge's offer of an American cruiser to carry him to New York.

In the latter event he probably would sail in about two weeks. At 9:30 o'clock, accompanied by an attaché of the embassy, Capt. Lindbergh motored to 10 Downing St., where he was received by Premier Baldwin. On account of his parliamentary duties the prime minister had been unable to attend Monday's luncheon for the American aviator given by Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton at the American embassy, so he invited Capt. Lindbergh to call upon him this morning before going to Buckingham Palace.

The premier received Lindbergh privately, and formally congratulated him on behalf of the British people, and then in company with Mrs. Baldwin took the young flyer to the famous gardens of No. 10 Downing St., where they chatted for some time.

Upon leaving the premier, Lindbergh witnessed the changing of the guards in the horse guards parade and also saw a rehearsal of the trooping of the colors, a ceremony that is always carried out on the King's birthday. Arriving at Buckingham Palace Lindbergh saw another military display for the household guards were on parade there, the guard being changed.

Shortly after 8 o'clock crowds began to gather in the streets near Buckingham Palace, hoping to get a glimpse of the plucky flyer. The jam became so great that the policemen detailed to hold back the ever growing numbers and reserves had to be rushed to the scene from Scotland Yard.

The aviator was accompanied by Frederick A. Sterling, counselor of the embassy, and Lieut. Col. Kenyon A. Joyce, military attaché, during the palace visit and other ceremonies. Ambassador Houghton is leaving for the United States. He sailed from Southampton on the liner Leviathan just about the same time that Capt. Lindbergh was going to the palace.

When Capt. Lindbergh entered the palace King George met him and warmly shook him by the hand. Immediately the king asked his visitor to be seated and started a friendly conversation. The king asked a number of questions about the trans-Atlantic flight which

PARADE AND CEMETERY PROGRAM HONORS XENIA'S SOLDIER DEAD

Address By Rev. W. N. Shank Pays Tribute To Military Heroes—Impressive Parade Precedes Ceremonies.

Xenia paid reverent homage to its war dead in simple but impressive Memorial Day exercises at Woodland Cemetery Monday afternoon, preceded by the usual parade in which all patriotic organizations of the city and many civilians participated.

A friendly sun smiled down during the afternoon in contrast to the morning threat of a rainstorm and the city gave itself over to patriotic consecration.

Without delay, the procession moved down E. Main St. at 2:30 o'clock led by members of the Police Department.

Following in the line of march were officers of the parade of which L. S. Barnes was grand marshal. Other military and patriotic organizations in the line of march included: Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, Lieutenant Orni Cornwell, commanding; O. S. and O. Home Battalion and Cadet Band; Company L, Band; Lewis Post, Sons of Veterans, G. A. R., and other soldiers, Spanish American, American Legion and other World War veterans, the Boy Scouts, D. A. R., and the G. A. R. W. R. C., auxiliary to the American Legion and D. V. in automobiles.

Citizens in autos and the Fire Department brought up the rear. Simplicity marked the exercises at the W. R. C. monument at Woodland Cemetery, the ceremony opening before a huge crowd with the memorial to the unknown dead by Lewis Relief Corps No. 29, and music by a choir of nine voices. Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was given this year by Miss Faye Cavannah, and after another song by the choir, the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church, who delivered the Memorial Day address, was introduced by Dr. Ben R. McClellan, State Senator J. Eugene Roberts, Youngstown, also talked briefly.

The complete text of the Memorial address by the Rev. W. N. Shank will be found on page eight.

"America" was sung by the audience and the exercises closed with the sounding of "taps" by a firing squad from J. P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion.

In memory of the living and dead soldiers of all wars, flowers were strewn at the G. A. R. mound in charge of the auxiliary of the American Legion.

Preceding the exercises at Cherry Grove Cemetery with Dr. H. R. Hawkins as master of ceremonies, a parade formed on E. Main St. and moved at 1:30 o'clock, in charge of Charles Young Camp and John Roan Post, No. 517, American Legion, in which colored patriotic and veterans organizations as well as civilians took part.

Impressive services were also held in Yellow Springs and Osborn Monday.

Chase Stewart, Springfield attorney, was the principal speaker at services in Yellow Springs. Due to rain which interrupted the program at the cemetery, the assemblage adjourned to the opera house where the services were completed.

Services at Osborn and Fairfield were in charge of George E. Dignan Post, No. 526 American Legion. Memorial services were held at the Methodist Church with the address given by Lieut. J. L. Stromme, preceded by a parade, after which the procession again formed and marched to the cemetery where the Legion conducted its ritual around the grave of a fallen comrade.

HONG KONG, May 31.—A Russian agitator, organizer and director of a Soviet peasant corps, was captured at Peking, reports received here stated today. The communist leader was first taken to Swatow, but will be brought to Canton for trial.

SEVERAL HURT WHEN DEPUTIES PROTECT JAIL AGAINST MOB

Alleged Slayer Of Five
Sought By Angry
Crowd

TAMPA, Fla., May 31.—National guard troops were ordered out early today to protect the county jail here which was stormed during the night by a mob seeking B. F. Levine, alleged confessed slayer of five persons.

The soldiers were called on at 3 o'clock this morning after a dozen persons had been wounded, one probably fatally, in an exchange of shots with deputies inside the jail.

Four local companies of the National Guard patrolled the vicinity of the jail today with machine guns mounted on the four corners, approaching the jail. National Guard companies from Lakeland and Bartow were enroute to Tampa, having been ordered out by Governor John W. Martin shortly after the state's attorney here had appealed to the executive for aid to quell the riots.

Despite assertions of Sheriff Hiers that Levine, alleged to have confessed he battered Mr. and Mrs. Herman Merrill and three of their children to death while the slept, had been spirited away to an unnamed destination, crowds began gathering before the county jail here last night.

By midnight the mob had swelled to several thousand persons. Armed with a huge timber that resembled a telegraph pole, a group of men advanced on the jail and began battering at a wall in an effort to gain entrance. The police on hand who sought to interfere were quickly overpowered.

Deputies inside the jail hurled tear bombs at the storming mob outside but without effect and the firing opened after the men with the huge piece of timber had battered a large hole through one of the brick walls.

Reports regarding the number of wounded conflicted today, an even dozen were reported to have been struck by the several thousand shots fired during the riot. A man named Pittman was reported killed but police and others could not definitely confirm this. The dead body of a deputy hanging over the wall of the jail also was reported seen by spectators.

When the mob stormed in complete control this morning despite the combined efforts of the police, fire department and deputy sheriffs, the state's attorney telephoned Governor Martin for aid.

The executive immediately ordered the militia in Tampa and directed military heads in Lakeland immediately march to Tampa.

The mob demonstrations came in the wake of the Cleaver murders last week when an intruder entered the home of Herman Merrill, a carpenter, and fatally injured him and his wife and three young children. A fourth child, a few weeks-old infant, also was badly hurt by the intruder but remains alive.

Levine was taken in custody shortly after and after several severe grillings he was said by police to have confessed to the crime.

CONCENTRATE JAP TROOPS IN CHINA

TOKYO, May 31.—Increased concentration of Japanese soldiers in China was believed near today. The tide of battle was turning against the Mukden troops, upon whom Japan is relying for protection of her citizens in Shantung, Consul General Yata at Tsingtau reported today.

Two thousand Japanese soldiers have already been detailed to Tsingtau. Two additional battalions of 2,000 men will be sent to Tientsin soon, it was believed.

The disturbance in China is reflected here, not only in the busy ministries of war and navy, but also in the general alarm for safety of Japanese citizens. The emperor, personally, is watching the Chinese situation. He scanted the dispatch of the Manchurian garrison to Tsingtau, and today granted audience to General Suzuki, chief of staff, for a report on the progress of events in north China.

INJURED AUTO RACE DRIVERS IMPROVE

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—The condition of Jules Ellingberg of Memphis, Tenn., and Henry Kohlert of St. Charles, Ill., injured in the 500-mile Memorial Day automobile race here, was slightly improved today.

Physicians said both men had fair chances for recovery. Ellingberg is suffering from a crushed chest and internal injuries. Kohlert has a probable fractured skull.

YOUTH IS DROWNED

CROWNING OF QUEEN TO FEATURE CEDAR DAY AFFAIR WEDNESDAY

Crowning of Miss May McKay, Wednesday evening, at 8:15 o'clock, the college senior class will present a play entitled "Captain Applejack" in the village opera house. The play is the story of an aged, rich man, who in a dream, becomes a leader of a pirate band. It is said to be an unusual production for a college. The cast has been rehearsing under the direction of Mrs. R. M. Horst, wife of the Cedarville athletic coach.

Should rural interfere with the Cedar Day pageant, the exercises will be held in Alford Memorial gymnasium.

The pageant will concern a betrothed couple on the coast of England, who, as they stroll down to the seashore, come upon a band of pirates fussing over the contents of a treasure chest. The pirates flee at the approach of the couple, leaving the treasure to the pair.

The townpeople dance and otherwise make merry afterwards and the closing festivities depicted will include a May pole dance. In the afternoon, the second major event of the occasion will be a baseball game between Cedarville College and the University of Dayton Flyers on the former's diamond at 2:30 o'clock.

Three persons were recovering Tuesday from injuries sustained during a fight at the home of Thomas Tracy, colored, Cedarville, early Monday night which resulted in three arrests, and one man being held to the grand jury on a charge of assault and battery.

Mont Smallwood, 43, Cedarville, is alleged to have started the quarrel when he started tearing a large bull dog at the Tracy home, while under the influence of liquor. The dog retaliated by biting the man on the left arm. Frank "Coke" Jeffries, 33, whose home is in Dayton, took the injured man in to the Tracy home to dress the injury, which was not serious.

Not satisfied, Smallwood is alleged to have again started to tease the dog with the result he was bitten once more. This time on the right arm. Smallwood obtained a two-inch gas pipe, three and one-half feet long, from the plant of the Abel Magnesia Co. nearby, and returned with the intention of killing the dog, witnesses said.

Jeffries is said to have tried to persuade the man to go home. Smallwood then turned on Jeffries, who is a cripple, having lost one arm and one leg with the second arm off at the elbow, and commenced beating him about the body with the heavy pipe.

Although not rendered unconscious, Jeffries is said to have sustained a broken hip and was badly bruised about the body. Tracy, who witnessed the proceedings, then intervened and threw a stick at Smallwood, who immediately turned his attention to the negro, probably fracturing the man's right arm when he struck him with the pipe.

Charles Pasco, 47, a friend of Jeffries, whose attention was attracted to the scene, managed to disarm Smallwood, and struck him a heavy blow above the left eye with the pipe.

Both Pasco and Smallwood were arrested and placed in jail by Marshal Hayes McLean, Cedarville. Pasco was fined $5 and costs for disorderly conduct by Mayor E. H. McFarland Tuesday morning and Smallwood was held to the grand jury for assault. Dr. O. E. Stewart, Cedarville, was called to attend Jeffries and Tracy, whose injuries are not believed to be serious.

Miss Elizabeth Dodds, who has been teaching at San Juan Turco, Porto Rico, landed in New York Monday, and will arrive at her home here Wednesday.

Mrs. Marguerite Kaufman, Columbus, spent Monday with the Misses Sarah and Eleanor Williams, and other Xenia friends. Mrs. Kaufman formerly taught in Xenia High school.

Mrs. Charles McGranahan, Dayton, is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Whittington, W. Main St.

Gilbert Newsome, Yellow Springs, underwent a tonsillectomy in this city Tuesday.

Merle Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gary, Jamestown, R. R. 1, underwent an operation for appendicitis at McClellan Hospital, Tuesday morning.

Xenia relatives and friends have received invitations to the thirty-second annual commencement of St. Joseph's College, Collegeville, Ind., June 8 and 9, when Paul P. Gallagher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gallagher, this city will graduate.

The Xenia Delphian Chapter will meet Tuesday evening with Mrs. C. O. Nybladh, N. King St.

Frank B. Turnbull, near Cedarville, is seriously ill with pneumonia. Mrs. Turnbull is also ill and it is thought she, too, is suffering from pneumonia.

CATTLE BREEDERS PICNIC THURSDAY

The Aberdeen-Angus Cattle Breeders' Association of Ohio, will be entertained by the Greene County Aberdeen-Angus Cattle Breeders' Association, Thursday, June 2, with a picnic at the Clark's Run School, north of Xenia. The picnic spot is located at the south end of Meadowbrook Stock Farm, owned by O. E. Bradford, former state and national president of the Farm Bureau Federation.

After a basket dinner at noon, the breeders will inspect the herds of O. E. Bradford and son, at Meadowbrook Farm; F. B. Turnbull, Cedar Dell Farm, Walter Ferguson and Ernest Hutchison, all within a mile of the picnic grounds.

All breeders of Aberdeen-Angus cattle in the state, together with their families are invited to the picnic and are asked to bring a basket dinner.

Eighteen Babies TREATED AT CLINIC

Eighteen babies, most of whom were new patients, were examined at the Kiwanis-Social Service League Baby Clinic, at Central High School, Tuesday morning.

Dr. H. C. Messenger, physician in charge, was assisted by Mrs. H. A. Hoffman, Mrs. James D. Adair, Mrs. J. O. McDorman, Mrs. Carl R. Babb, and Mrs. J. H. Whitmer. J. H. Whitmer and Ellsworth Weaklin assisted by transporting the children.

MAYOR'S COURT

Four motorists were arrested over the week-end by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, charged with exceeding the speed limit, and all forfeited $5 bonds when they failed to appear in the mayor's court.

Those arrested were: Andrew Burr, A. K. Frederick, E. S. Penney and Harley Clark.

HOLD RUM RUNNERS

CLEVELAND, O., May 31.—Three men were being held as alleged rum runners today, following their capture by Rocky River police last night. Contraband liquor estimated to be worth about $4,000 was seized.

AT LEAST HE WON'T BE COLD

NEW YORK.—Life has added one more straw to the burden of Miss Peggy Darling, typewriter player in the business band. Her mother and sister died recently, she lost her job, and now, to crown it all, she has lost her poodle, inseparable companion for ten years. The dog will eat only when fed by hand, and she fears it will starve. It had no license but was clothed, when last seen, in a black silk cape, fastened by a gold pin. It wore no other jewelry.

Do It NOW and Avoid this

Collection of the last installment of 1926 taxes is now in progress at the County Treasurer's office under the supervision of Treasurer Frank A. Jackson, and as taxpayers must be paid before June 20, earlier payments will convenience both the tax-payer and the county office.

"Don't put it off until the last minute this year," Treasurer Jackson advises tax-payers.

During the week of June 13, either the treasurer or a representative of his office, will be stationed at various points over the county, assisting property owners in making returns, without the inconvenience of coming directly to the office in the Court House.

MODERNISTS CAPTURE CONTROL OF PRINCETON SEMINARY AT ASSEMBLY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—With the modernist-fundamentalist controversy over control of the Princeton seminary apparently settled in favor of the modernists, the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church was settling back into routine discussions today.

After three hours of impassioned debate, the liberal faction succeeded in passing a resolution which will place reorganization work at the Princeton seminary under one board. The fundamentalists were also defeated in their attempt to elevate to a higher position Dr. J. Gresham Machen, ultra-fundamentalist member of the Princeton faculty.

Leaders of the Lord's Day Alliance announced today their intention of endeavoring to get support of the Presbyterians for rigid and absolute observance of Sundays. The Alliance hopes to make the Sabbath "blue" by securing passage of laws to prevent motion picture shows, ball games or other amusements and to prohibit the conduct of any business not absolutely essential on Sunday.

XENIANS KEPT BUSY AT CHURCH MEETING IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Rev. James P. Lytle and Herman W. Eavey, who are representing the United Presbyterian Presbytery of Xenia at the General Assembly in session at Washington, D. C., have faced a busy program of work, together with other commissioners.

The Rev. Mr. Lytle is serving on the special committee on Home Missions and Mr. Eavey is serving as a member of the committee on nominations. The assembly is in session morning, afternoon and evening, while the committees meet as called by the chairman before and after these sessions.

Special matters include reorganization of certain boards of the church, relocation of the Board of Ministerial Relief, publication of the new Psalter-Hymnal, working out some solution for properly financing the missionary work of the church abroad and the complete reorganization of the General Council.

The Xenia delegates have, however, found time to see a few points of interest including the Cathedral on St. Albans where repose the bodies of Woodrow Wilson and Admiral Dewey, a trip to the Arlington National Cemetery and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and a personally escorted visit to the President's yacht, the Mayflower, through the courtesy of Chaplain R. W. Shrum, a fellow student with the Rev. Mr. Lytle at Princeton. President Coolidge received the delegates at the White House where his picture was taken with that of the visitors. The commissioners are to be given a trip on Saturday afternoon to Mt. Vernon. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Galoway arrived in Washington Friday and remained until Monday. The Xenians were happy to greet Dr. D. D. Dodds of Oakmont, Pa., who was pastor of First Church, Xenia, for a number of years. Mrs. James P. Lytle visited relatives and friends in New York City, Brooklyn and Palmerton, Pa., and joined the Xenia party at Washington Monday.

Lindy's Friend

An alliance founded on mutual admiration has sprung up between Charles Lindbergh and Louis Bleriot (above). Bleriot was the Lindbergh of his day, being the first man to fly across the English Channel, a feat regarded as certain of fatal results at the time he did it.

NONOGENARIAN IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Following a three weeks' illness from a complication of ailments, Richard Shaw, 97, died at his home on the Alpha Road, five miles west of Xenia at 11:45 o'clock Monday night.

Mr. Shaw had lived all of his life in that vicinity and had lived until next September 16, would have been ninety-eight years of age. He was born in Rushville, Ind.

Surviving are the following children: Rolla, Albert and John Xenia; James, at home; Herbert, Canada; Mrs. Martha Ellen Vorhees, near Xenia; Mrs. Nancy J. Young, Middletown; and Mrs. Hannah Matilda Mercer, Xenia. Two other sons and one daughter are dead. In addition, one half-brother, Isaac, near Bellbrook, and thirty-three grand children, sixty-three great grand children, and two great great grand children also survive.

The funeral party will meet at the home at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon and proceed to the Friends Church in Spring Valley where funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock. Burial will be made in the Spring Valley Cemetery.

TABLET HONORING FOUNDERS OF HOME TO BE PRESENTED THERE

With impressive and appropriate ceremony, a handsome tablet will be presented to the O. S. and S. O. Home, Wednesday afternoon, by the Women's Relief Corps, of Ohio and the G. A. R. Details of the program are still being worked out by committees in charge.

The tablet is being placed in honor of veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, who organized the home shortly after the close of the Civil War.

The tablet was cast at the Buckeye Iron and Brass Works, Dayton, and bears the following message:

"This tablet is erected in honor of our beloved veterans of the Civil War, 1861-1865, the Grand Army of the Republic, department of Ohio, who organized this home in 1869, and by their patriotic effort provide for the future protection and education of their children and the children of all wars, whose faith served in the defense of the United States of America."

"Rutherford B. Hayes, Gov. of State."

"Maj. Gen. Warren Kiefer, Department Commander."

"Committee: George W. Collier, J. A. Chase, A. G. Myers, D. B. Corwin, and Capt. William Earnshaw."

"Board of Control: Rev. P. P. Inalls, president; Gen. H. G. Armstrong, secretary."

MAY ERECT MONUMENT

LEBANON, O., May 31.—The proposition of erecting in Lebanon a statue of Alfred Holbrook, founder and first president of the old National Normal University, will be considered when alumni and former students of the university hold their third annual reunion there the first week in August.

A round table discussion was held, the first topic being "How To Handle an Adult Class," led by Guy Gordon. The Rev. J. S. Gordon talked on "Do We Give Young People Sufficient Part in Church Work?" The Rev. L. L. Gray talked on "Do We Need a Change in the Manner of Work?"

The Rev. L. D. Vesey, Jamestown, had charge of devotions and Eldora Baughn gave a vocal number. Mrs. W. O. Custis, Xenia, president of the County Sunday School Association, presented and explained the work of the unit.

J. H. Bagley, Xenia, gave a talk on the "Four-Fold Life," with social, physical, moral and spiritual factors as his high-points.

NATIONAL HEROES

Memorial Day this year found the nation paying tribute to the thinning ranks of Civil War heroes even as it proclaimed the arrival in England of another national hero, Captain Charles Lindbergh.

While ceremonies were being held in countless cemeteries for the heroic war dead of a country that was wrested from the primeval state, created, preserved and maintained through the heroic deeds of its dauntless youth, another youth, slim, boyish and modest, was writing a new chapter to America's romantic and adventurous history.

The contrast is the story of America itself. Founded on a desire for liberty and freedom that burned so fiercely that it caused brave men to dare the dangers of savages, distress and physical discomfort, it has come down to the present generation as a heritage from the past, built on the blood of martyrs to patriotism and preserved in a like manner against attacks from without and within.

Lindbergh, fortunately, is just as we would have him be. We like to think that the spirit of America is romantic, adventuresome, gay but tempered with modesty. Lindbergh's air voyage recommends his adventuresome and romantic spirit. His attitude in the face of the acclaim that has been accorded him in Europe bespeaks his modesty. If the honors bestowed upon him do not turn his head, which appears unlikely, America will not be ashamed to hold up this young man as a model for its youth. In him lives the spirit of America's great.

The Theatre

By WILLIAM PARKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 31.—Improvidence and the "misery sack" are rapidly disappearing among the motion picture folk. The "misery sack" is a heritage of theatrical people since the days when they were strolling minstrels and troubadours. It is a small leather sack hung by cord from the neck and contains the actor's savings, his "ace in hole" when the theatrical company found itself stranded a long way from home.

Here are some of the prominent film players who are now in trade. Clara Bow, famous for exemplification of "It," owns and personally directs a cleaning and dyeing establishment in Hollywood; Betty Bronson, the winsome "Peter Pan," deals in real estate; the petite brunette Bebe Daniels, has built and sold a number of apartment houses and homes; Esther Ralston, the most striking blonde of them all as well as the patrician Florence Vidor are extensive operators in real estate.

Believe it or not that irresponsible funmaker Wallace Beery is a member of the advisory board of the Bank of Italy, president of the Bond's Development company, and owns two large ranches; his fun-making partner, Raymond Hatton owns a 7,000 acre ranch on an island off Mazatlan, Mexico; Tom Melchan owns Florida and Long Island realty and a lot of automobile stock; Adolphe Menjou has invested in income property.

Cecil De Mille is vice-president of the Bank of America; a director of the Bank of Italy, a partner in a hotel, a shoe store, a canned food factory, a milk bottle factory, an apson salt deposit in Death Valley, and has made more money out of real estate than films.

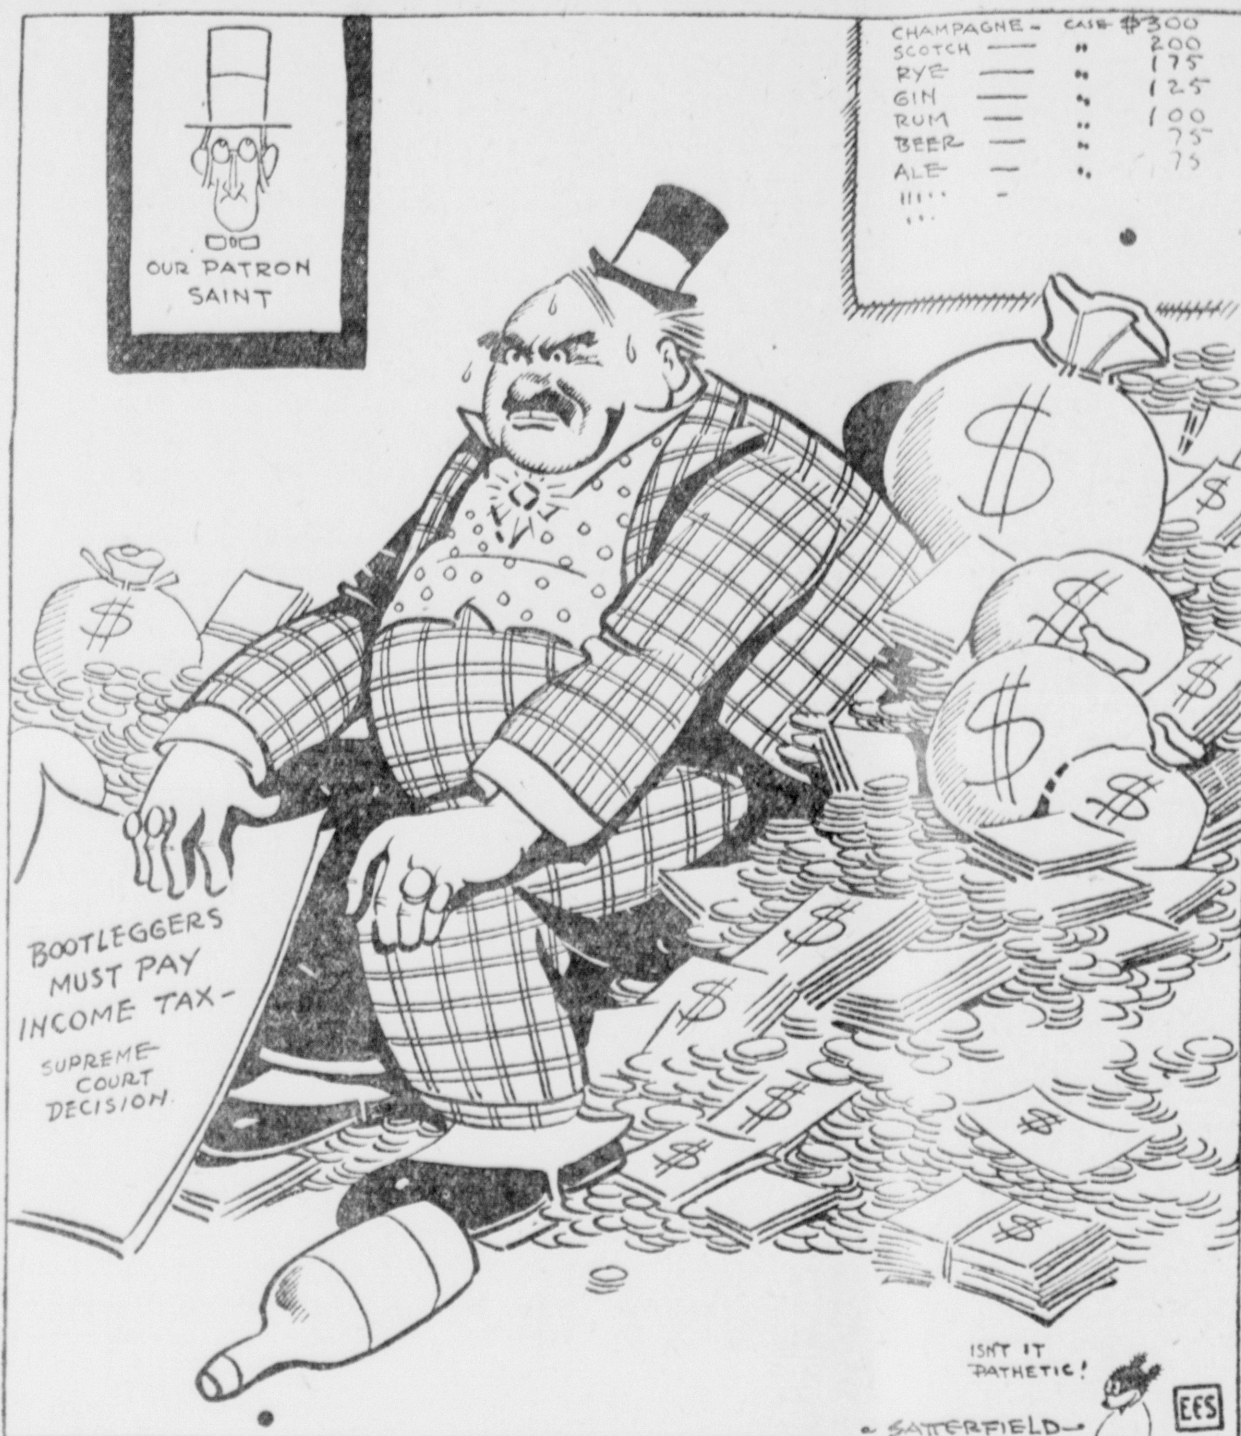

Tom Mix raises cattle; Agnes Ayres owns a butcher shop; Sada Cowan, the writer, a florist shop; Raymond McKee, a restaurant; Viola Dana and her sister Shirley Mason, a beauty shop; George K. Arthur, a barber shop; Conrad Nagel, a chicken ranch; Madge Bellamy, a dress shop; Ben Bard, a gas station, a tailor shop and composes music; Huntley Gordon, a hosiery shop; Russell Simpson, an iron foundry; Monte Rio, Donald Crisp, Samuel Goldwyn and John McCormick, husband of Colleen Moore, are directors of the Bank of Italy.

EX-FILM STAR AS INVENTOR

James Carrigan, who deserted the movies to turn inventor, has produced a new loud speaker. Two cylinders of different sizes, enclosed at one end by a conical diaphragm, and vibrated simultaneously by an electro-magnetic unit such as is used in the ordinary loud speaker, are said to reproduce the entire scale.

THE COUNTRY'S GOING TO THE DOGS

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C. KELLY

WHY THE RICH ARE RICH

I happened to be in the office of a wealthy business man the other day and overheard a conversation he was having with the manager of his farm.

The big boss had just been looking over a stack of bills for labor and supplies at the farm before ordering his secretary to write out checks for them. His eye chanced to alight on an item of "12 files, at ten cents each—$1.20."

That charge might have seemed innocent enough to you or me, but this successful man of affairs was instantly aroused to indignation.

Pulling his glasses down to where he could look over the top of them, he glared somewhat scornfully at his farm manager, and, shaking an index finger, by way of punctuation, he said: "There isn't a thing selling at ten cents apiece which can't be bought for a dollar a dozen. If you have bought a dozen files at $1.20 when you could have gotten the same thing for a dollar, you wasted twenty cents of the money needed for the transaction. I can't afford to throw away twenty per cent of my money myself, and I don't like to delegate such wastefulness to others."

"Well, I was busy at the time," faltered the farm manager, "in a hurry to get back to my job, and—"

"So long as you work for me," interrupted the boss, "you mustn't be too busy or in too much of a hurry to save me twenty per cent whenever opportunity offers. Most people," he went on to remark more calmly, "are glad to make four or five per cent on their money in twelve months. In my own business I operate on a four per cent basis. That is, I'm satisfied if I average four per cent on each transaction. But here you had a chance to make twenty per cent and didn't do it."

See? The rich grow rich because of a gift for infinite watchfulness, even about small details. Small wonder that they get ahead.

A drug store proprietor tells me that wealthy people are always the keenest shoppers. If he offers for sale an article obtainable at a lower price in a cut-rate store down the street, the prosperous customers are sure to kick, but the fellow who needs to save the difference is more likely to pay the price asked without a murmur.

It is logical enough that the rich man should be far more careful about his money than a poor man.

Carefulness is what made the one rich, and carelessness is what kept the other poor.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, May 31.—Jennie MacGregor hails from Nova Scotia.

She owns up to twenty-six summers and is lovely as a Pearl in a brunette, Canadian way. Her eyes are wide, with long-fringed lashes. She has shell-like ears, and all that sort of thing.

At 4 o'clock the other morning she and a "lady friend," and the "lady friend's" husband, were seated in a taxicab drawn up at the curb on upper Broadway. A debate was in progress. Resolved: That a taximeter is a mechanical Jesse James.

The driver was supporting the negative end of the argument in what printers call "32-point Old English."

The debate had reached a bitter, almost acrimonious stage, when Patrolman McGillicooley happened along.

"What's the argument?" queried the policeman, in his rich, southern drawl.

They told him. He pondered for a brief instant, and then addressed Miss Jenny MacGregor's "lady friend's" husband:

"Pay this man what's comin' to him an' leave him depart. This ain't no time o' th' mornin' to be in th' street arguin'."

The fare was paid and the taxi man drove away; but before departing Miss MacGregor lingered to present Patrolman McGillicooley with a little verbal picture of just how he shaped up in her eyes.

The lady from Nova Scotia stroked with a broad brush.

"Aw, g'wan!" replied McGillicooley, not relinquishing for an instant his marvelous power of felicitous repartee. "G'wan! Best it!"

When the average woman owns a wall, it is usually in her husband's name. Jennie MacGregor, however, is an exception.

"If you come here again on a visit," she explained, "I could have gone to Europe, but I preferred to see America first. I wanted to sample the brand of freedom being dispensed here this spring. Undoubtedly the policeman had a right, under the law of the country, to speak to me as he did. He probably mistook me for an American!"

The magistrate bestowed on Miss Jenny a suspended sentence.

"If you come here again on a visit," he told her, "you must bear in mind that nice little girls don't knock big policemen down. It just isn't done."

Miss MacGregor says she will never, hereafter, manœuvre the finger tips of her right hand without experiencing a nice, comfortable feeling.

As Master Will once remarked: "All's well that ends well."

THE new house, building just across the way.

Is finished, and the folks are moving in. They're cleaning up the scraps of wood today.

And the new grass is showing, pale and thin.

What kind of people are they? No one knows.

They have three children and their name is Brown.

They look respectable and wear good clothes.

They're here to stay, with business in the town.

Their furniture looked just about like ours, When they unloaded. Decent, good, but worn.

It's a good sign to see those ferns and flowers.

Her curtains are nice; one's mended where it's torn.

Just wait a minute—call it fair or foul, I have a method never yet proved wrong I went and waved at her with my dish-towel—

And say, she waved right back! Yes, they "belong!"

IT WAS IN the PAPER

Did you READ it?

Here are six questions dealing with news events of the past few days which have been reported in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican. Can you answer them accurately? If you can, you may claim credit as a really intelligent reader; but if you fail, that means you merely skim the news, as so many people do. Answers on Class.

QUESTIONS

1. What war department official escaped uninjured from an airplane accident? Who was in the plane with him?

2. What southern city was threatened by fire? In what section did the fire originate?

3. What head of a great religious organization has announced bathing beauty contests? What particular contest?

4. Where was a woman's world fair held recently? By whom was it opened?

5. From what zoo was snake serum recently transported by automobile to save the life of a man bitten by a rattler? Where did he live?

6. What officials of what state are accused of violating the dry law? For what purpose?

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"In this country there has developed a coddling of criminals in capital cases and execution is delayed months, and sometimes years, until there surrounds the criminal an aspect of quasi-martyrdom."

—Justice Townsend Scudder.

"There is no finer page in the history of civilization than that which records the advance in medical science. The heroism of those who have worked with deadly germs and permitted themselves to be inoculated with disease, to the end that countless thousands might be saved, was less spectacular but no less far-reaching than that on the battlefield or of an isolated rescue from a burning building or a sinking ship."

—Calvin Coolidge

"That compulsion drives us all is clear. We must accept the heredity that we are born with; we must grow older as the years pass; we must work for our daily bread; we must face life's unforeseen troubles that break on us like water through a burst levee, and at last we must die."

—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick

"For a critic of church and clergy in these days to employ the same fastidious method of blackening the personal character of the representative of unwelcome opinions which the church itself has often employed in dealing with heretics is certainly nothing short of despicable."

—Professor David S. Muzzey

"Players of games feel no responsibility toward the spectators. But authors feel themselves responsible for making their readers understand what is going on. To keep a book at all natural and artistic and the narrative moving, the author must bank upon the interest and intelligence of his readers. Good and fine books deserve the very best reading that anyone can give them."

—Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A.F. Currier

VITILIGO

It is often difficult to draw an accurate line between neuritis and neuralgia.

Take, for instance, the atrocious pain the back of the thigh and leg.

called sciatica; it may show, in the ordinary bedside examination, no clear evidence of inflammation of the sciatic nerve except sensitiveness at a point.

But if a portion of the nerve were removed and examined with the microscope, opium and alcohol, clear evidence of inflammation of the nerve substance and more or less degeneration of the nerve fibrils.

A nerve is a bundle of nerve fibres or filaments, each with its separate structure, bound together with cementing material and covered with a protecting sheath, like an electric cord or cable.

Inflammation may destroy a portion of the nerve, but it may be regenerated unless the loss is great.

One or many nerves may be involved in neuritis, the destruction of tissue may be slight or extensive, and the trouble may last a few days or many years. The pain of it may be bearable or unbearable—an ache or a stab or just sensitiveness.

The skin may be swollen and glossy, with sweating and a crop of blisters following the track of the nerve. The joints may be swollen, permanently stiffened, and contain fluid. If the nerves are badly injured, the muscles to which they are distributed will shrivel and wither.

If the nerve system in general is involved, the patient may get hysterical or excited or even crazy.

The skin may not only be painful; it may have a sensation of burning or tingling or of insects crawling over it.

Instead of being excessively sensitive, the skin may be without feeling, not responding to what would ordinarily give pain.

In those forms of the disease in which many nerves are involved, there is not only withering of the muscles but twitching, bending of the fingers and toes, possibly falling of the nails, grey hair, and other symptoms of bad nutrition.

Causes of neuritis are draughts of air, dampness, heat or cold, cuts and bruises, poisons like lead, arsenic, mercury, opium and alcohol.

It may also result from tuberculosis, syphilis, inflammation of the bones, bacterial poisoning in typhoid fever, diphtheria and malaria.

It may come as an epidemic, like beriberi, or with an eruption on the skin like shingles. It may be due to pressure—for instance, the pressure of crutches in the arm pits.

It may begin with a chill and fever, develop slowly or rapidly, may paralyze the muscles of speech, swallowing and respiration and be quickly fatal; or it may be long drawn out and finally cause death from pneumonia or tuberculosis.

Its treatment involves many agencies, some helpful, others questionable or useless. Rest is always an important measure of treatment.

Other measures are moist and dry heat, cold, massage, electricity, vibration, irritants, blisters, light, etc. Drug treatment is sometimes of great importance, especially in relieving pain. Cathartics are often required and must be changed as their efficiency seems to diminish.

Nourishing food in abundance must be taken, but indigestion is to be rigorously guarded against.

Sleep is so often irregular that hypnotic drugs may be imperative.

The more sleep and food one gets, the better as a rule, will he be able to fight this disease.

How to Achieve Beauty

CONCERNING OVERWEIGHT Overweight is one of the greatest handicaps against health and physical attractiveness and yet it is something which in most cases can be controlled.

It has also been proven that one may materially and without harm to their health reduce their weight, even though a superfluous amount of it may have been possessed for many years.

Eating too much and exercising too little is usually the cause of overweight and normal weight can be attained by reversing the process within limits of safety—these vary with the individual.

Before going on a reducing regime, however, it is essential that you first consult your physician and go through a physical examination to ascertain if the overweight may have been caused by any organic disease. The possibility of diabetes especially in extreme cases of overweight should be carefully determined and in this case your physician will recommend a special diet.

The next step is to determine to what extent you wish to reduce and to decide on the length of time to be devoted to the reducing regime.

Following this is the careful planning of your diet which should be varied from time to time in order to bring about the gradual and sufficient weight reduction and at the same time furnish the body with a sufficient amount of nourishment.

And last but not least, you should know exactly how much exercise you should indulge in while on this reducing diet and in this you should again be guided by the advice of your physician.

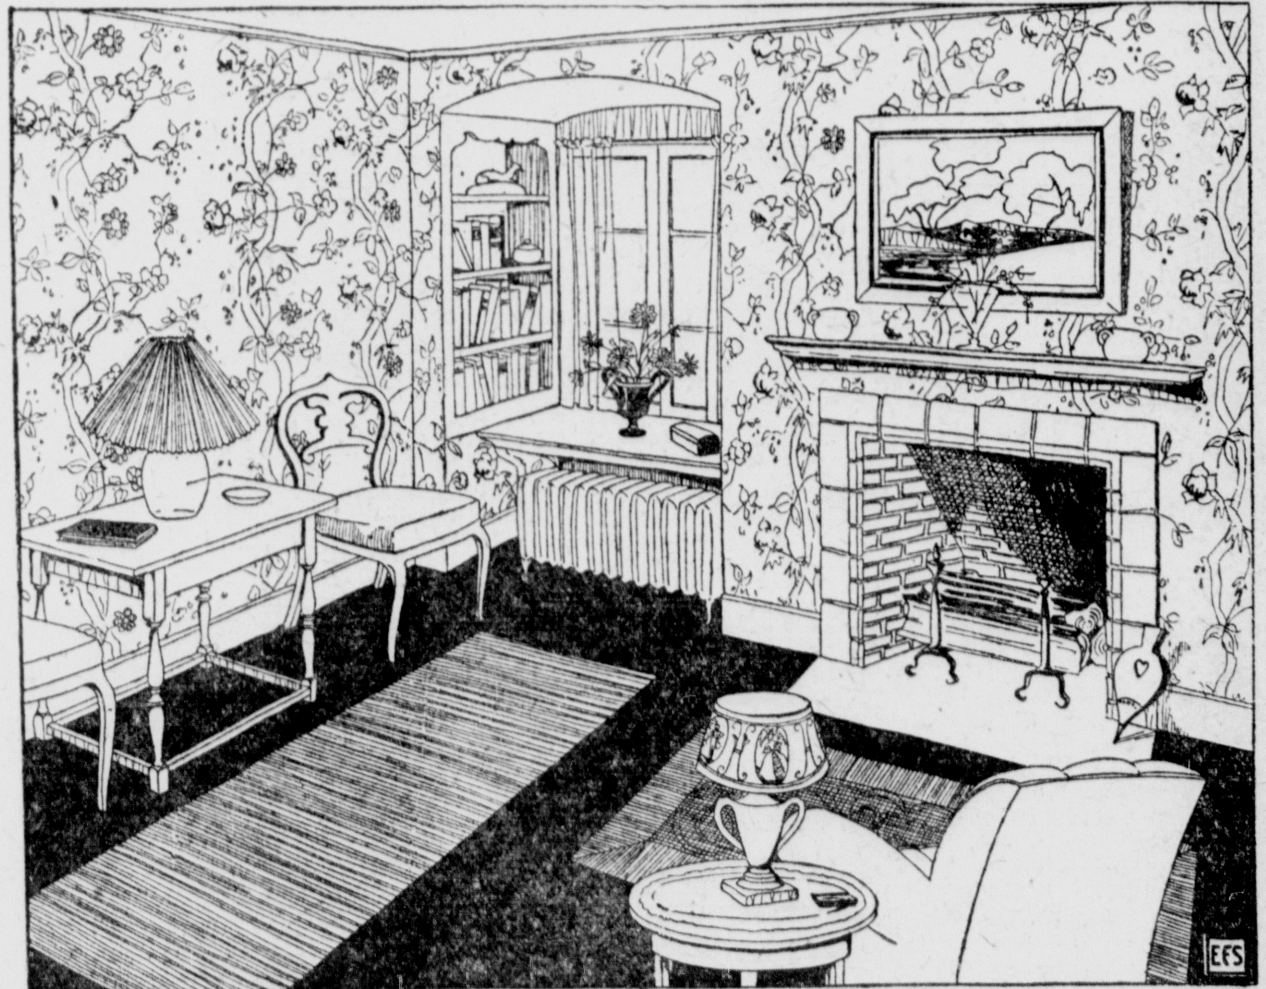

Going on a reducing "campaign" does not mean that it is necessary to starve yourself until you really suffer from a hungry feeling, but it does mean that you must control your appetite especially with regard to the amount of starches, sugars and fats consumed, as they are high in food values. In place of these you should eat more fresh fruits, lean meats and vegetables, especially leafy ones such as spinach, beet tops, cabbage and lettuce, as well as the bulky foods which nourish but do not fatten.

In order to know how to gauge your diet, it is necessary for you to be somewhat familiar with the workings of the human system, so tomorrow I will explain this to you briefly and give you a concise explanation of the fundamental amount of food necessary for the body to carry on its work and at the same time help eliminate a certain amount of superfluous flesh without harm to your health. I will also give a few examples of reducing menus which will give you an idea of the regime you can follow if this matter is of interest to you.

WALL PAPER MAKES ROOM COLD OR WARM

By HILDA HUNT

Warmth characterizes the living room pictured above. Though the various pieces of furniture are not in the same period of style, they supplement each other delightfully being brought into a harmonious whole by the soft pastel shade of the figured wall paper which dispels any possible feeling of a cold formality.

An adaptation of the vertical line is apparent in this design, with its up and down movement tending to heighten the room. This is an important point for rooms with low ceilings. You can always make a room look higher by using a vertical designed wall paper.

Wall paper of today is found in a multitude of pleasing and beautiful color compositions—pale blue skies, soft green earth, the lacy twining of vine-work, flowering magnolia, cherry and plum blossoms. Summer is transplanted to the walls of rooms heretofore cheerless and inanimate.

The room pictured above shows several new and interesting treatments. Note the built-in book cases in the window recess. Note the shelf over the radiator and the transparent lamp vase on the table. The furniture is upholstered in plain fabrics because the walls supply all the necessary design.

Since successful decoration in any room depends upon color, beauty of design, and balance of composition, the use of light pastels or figured wall paper necessitates contrasting simple values in the floor covering. Rugs and lampshades in which are repeated many of the colors used in the room, complete an ensemble of livable love.

Springfield Tramps Lose To Xenia Reserves 8-6

CYPHERS SETS DOWN VISITORS IN SPITE OF RAGGED SUPPORT

Locals Have Strong Battle To Come Out On Top

Treating the visitors just as disrespectfully as any other club this season, the Xenia Reserves won their sixth consecutive game by defeating the Springfield Tramps 8 to 6 in a contest marked by the heavy hitting of both clubs and a preponderance of errors in the Memorial Day matinee at Washington Park.

Cyphers, Reserve twirler, was hit freely in every inning but the second but received marvelous support in the tight situations and lasted the route, although nicked for thirteen safeties. Hood yielded nine blows, but seven of these were crowded in three innings and the Reaper City pitcher also lacked support in the infield.

Taking everything into consideration, the game was probably the best of the season and the Reserves were hard pressed to pull through a victory.

The Tramps opened the scoring in the first inning on a double by Covington and O'Hara's single. Reserves also pushed a runner around in this frame when Keifer singled, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. C. Scott walked and stole second and Keifer scored after the catch on Durnbaugh's long sacrifice fly to right.

Reserves assumed a lead in the second by scoring twice. Weller was safe at first on an error, went to third on Tangeman's single and scored when the Springfield shortstop made a second wild throw on Cyphers' grounder, the batter reaching first safely. Johnson and Keifer out but Scott's neat single plated Tangeman.

The two-run advantage was short-lived for the visitors tied the score in the third by bunting three hits with a sacrifice. Hood opened with a single and Covington duplicated. Both runners advanced a base on a sacrifice by O'Hara, and scored on a double by Fressinger.

Springfield also scored another tally in the fifth on Fressinger's long triple and Hustlar's single. Reserves won the contest in the last half of the inning by making the most of three errors and by some hard hitting, scoring five runs.

Keifer was safe on an error and stole second. Scott filed out but Durnbaugh singled and Keifer scored on an error by Hood. Durnbaugh pilfered second and Rader was safe on a fumble, the batter also stealing second. Then three solid doubles in succession by D. Fuller, Weller and Tangeman accounted for the five runs.

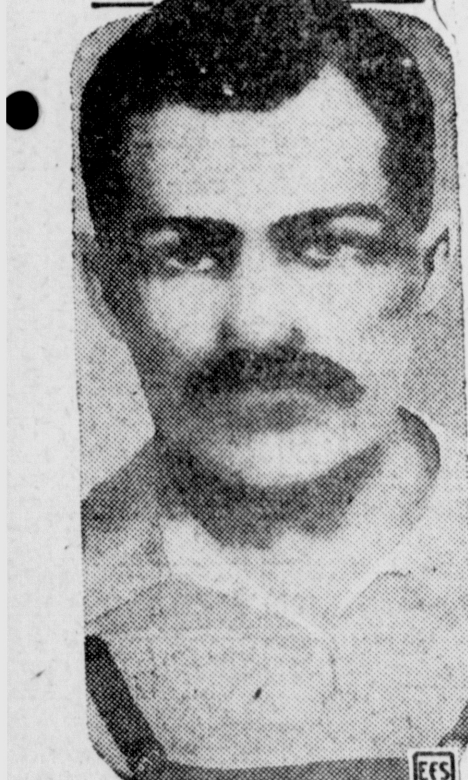

The Reserves called it a day as far as scoring was concerned and set to work to hold the lead, a feat which was not accomplished without difficulty for the Tramps kept pecking away at Cyphers' offerings and scored one run in the sixth and their sixth and last tally in the eighth.

In the sixth Swartz singled and Bunk filed out. Childers hit to Fuller and with an easy double play or at least a force out in sight. Rader dropped the second baseman's throw and all hands were safe. The same thing occurred on Hood's blunder, only this time Fuller was the offender in dropping Rader's throw to second. Swartz scoring. In the eighth Bunk singled but was thrown out at second. Childers was safe on a fumble, stole second and scored on a fielder's choice.

Reserves ran the bases promiscuously, stealing no less than seven sacks. Both teams experienced an off day in the field, Springfield making six misplays while the locals were at fault five times.

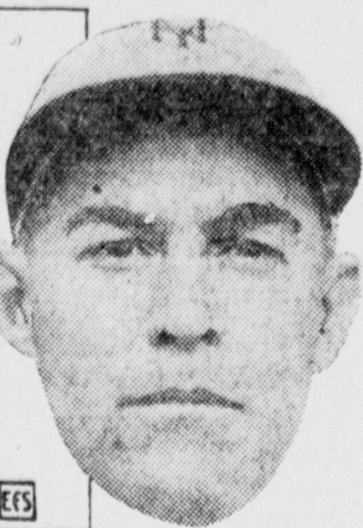

Harshmanville will be Xenia's next opponent in a Buckeye League game next Sunday at Washington Park.

Maniac Bomber

This is probably the only picture in existence of Andrew Kehoe, the madman who blew up the Bath, Mich., school house, causing two score deaths. The contents of Kehoe's home were destroyed in the blast which he himself set, together with the building, and no portrait of the man has been found. This picture, which accurately portrays Kehoe's appearance, was made from a small snapshot showing Kehoe in a group of lumberjacks with whom he once worked in the woods.

CLIMB TO SAVE
BOSTON.—When Ernest Sadler climbed the winding stairway in his stable at Limerick, Me., to pitch down some hay for his horse, he found the animal at the top of the building, contentedly nibbling away. Rising with an unusually keen appetite the horse had climbed upstairs to the ladder. Getting down was something else again and required the assistance of six strong men.

BOWERSVILLE WINS OVER JAMESTOWN IN TRIANGLE CONTEST

Bowersville Bayliffs were forced to go fourteen innings before they were able to subdue the Jamestown outfit, 11 to 8 in a Triangle League game at Jamestown Sunday. This is the longest contest to be staged in the league.

But for two wild throws in the fourth and fifth innings Bowersville would have won in the regulation distance. Nute Murrell, after getting two singles and a triple, broke up the sport in the fourth. After Kersey, first up, singled, Cox filed to left. E. Haughey was safe when Cox mused and Linkhart fanned. D. Murrell was safe when Cox duplicated his fumble. At this time Nute delivered the winning blow, a nice single, and drove in two runs, Kersey having scored on an error ahead of them.

V. Haughey, former bench warmer for Jamestown played short for the Bayliffs, this youngster going far and wide and accepting eleven chances without a wobble. In the ninth and tenth he had two putouts and three assists, taking one close to second, touching the bag and completing the double play. Kersey did nice work, allowing but one run in the last nine innings. Jamestown was weak in the pinches. In the eleventh the first man up got on but succeeding batters could not drive him around.

In the twelfth the second man up doubled and still they fluked. In the thirteenth V. Haughey retired the side unassisted. The final stanza reads the first three up and the first three down.

Bowersville will play at Waynesville next Sunday at 3 p. m. Box score:

XENIANS UNHURT AS AUTO IS WRECKED
Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Adair, N. Galloway St., escaped injury in an auto accident which occurred four miles north of Wilmington, on the Xenia-Wilmington Pike, Monday evening at 5 o'clock.
Mr. and Mrs. Adair were returning home from Maysville, Ky., when a tire on one of the rear wheels blew out, causing Mr. Adair to lose control of the car. The machine swerved into the left hand ditch and was struck by another car which was being driven toward Wilmington.
The rear of the Adair machine was demolished but the occupants were unhurt. The woman driver of the other car, whose name was not learned, was slightly cut. C. D. Galliett, Washington Ct. H., was the name of the owner of the car, according to Mr. Adair.

MANY ATTRACTED BY GOLF TOURNAMENT

Exceptionally fine weather attracted a great number of entrants for the initial golf tournaments of the season at the Xenia Country Club Memorial Day.

Two "blind handicaps" tournaments were held in charge of the chairman of the tournament committee, one tournament open to men only having thirty entries, and the mixed tourney for men and women, drawing eighteen entries.

A number of good scores were made during the morning and afternoon and the links were crowded all day. Probably the best gross score was made by Arthur Currie, former Ohio Wesleyan University student, who turned in a card of eighty-two for the two rounds.

Women members of the club served a luncheon at the club house at noon.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF
After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. E. DAUGHERTY, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

THESE ARE THE ANSWERS TO THE QUESTIONS ON PAGE FOUR

1. Acting Secretary of War Hanford MacNider escaped unhurt when the plane in which he and Lieutenant Ira C. Eaker were traveling crashed.

2. Miami, Fla., was threatened by fires in the Everglades section of the state.

3. Pope Pius XI has denounced bathing beauty contests in general and the one recently held at Galveston, Tex., in particular.

4. Vice President Charles G. Dawes opened the woman's world fair which was recently held at Chicago.

5. Anti-snake bite serum was recently taken from Bronx Park zoo in New York to save the life of a man bitten by a rattlesnake at Milford, Pa.

6. Governor Jackson and Attorney General Gilliom of Indiana have been accused of violating the dry law because they secured whiskey to save the life of the governor's wife.

air. He could go as a passenger upon one of the regular air line planes that operate between Croydon and Le Bourget. He could travel as a passenger with a royal air force pilot, or, as proposed last night, he could go in a borrowed British plane, operating it himself.

The British air authorities at Croydon are tentatively planning an impressive aerial display when Capt. Lindbergh departs. It is proposed to send up a great fleet of airplanes to escort Capt. Lindbergh's machine over the English channel.

Ambassador Houghton expressed deep regret that he had to leave England while Capt. Lindbergh was still a guest at the United States embassy. He explained that he had already made his plans for departure and that, if he waited in London two days more, he would be six days late in arriving in New York owing to shipping delays.

Lindbergh had luncheon at Claridge's at 1:30 and at 4:30 was to go to the House of Commons as the guest of Lady Astor.

Tonight the Royal Aeronautical Society, the Royal Aero Club and the Society of British Aircraft Constructors will entertain the American youth at a banquet at the Savoy. Five hundred guests have been invited and Lord Thompson, former air minister, will present Lindbergh with a gold cup on behalf of the Daily Mail.

The new era of Franco-American fraternity that Lindbergh has ushered in coincides with the publication in the United States of "Letters to a Doubter," by M. Paul Claudel, the recently-appointed French ambassador to this country. Poet and playwright by literary profession, this book by M. Claudel reveals him in the guise of a deeply religious believer. The volume consists of translations of letters exchanged between the cultured diplomat and M. Jacques Riviere. The latter desired to embrace Roman Catholicism, but was deterred by his "intellectual agnosticism." The book discloses that Ambassador Claudel himself was an almost invincible doubter, with regard to religion, when he concluded his university career. M. Riviere ultimately became a Catholic and readers of the Claudel letters obtain the impression that it was their matchless fervor which worked what the convert on his deathbed called "a miracle."

A New One on Mrs. Cal. Here's a new story making the rounds about Mrs. Coolidge. The girl who dresses the First Lady's hair was "scared to death" the first time she went to the White House professionally. "I kept trying to think," she said "that I mustn't get any water down Mrs. Coolidge's neck, and wondered what in the world would happen if I did."

Ambassador Herrick is coming in for a good deal of credit in connection with Captain Lindbergh's tactical conquest of France. The American envoy to Paris had no orders from Washington to convert Lindbergh into an official guest of the United States in our embassy mansion on Avenue d'Ileane. Acting upon an initiative not common under the "messenger-boy" system of modern diplomacy, Herrick took in the American boy who dropped out of the clouds without waiting for state department orders. It's hard to conceive of anything any American ambassador anywhere could have done that would be more popular with the folks back home. Lindbergh is unmistakably a person with an instinct for doing the right thing. But it's not detracting from his splendid qualities to suggest that Ambassador Herrick's fatherly and adroit counsel has probably played its part in keeping the young world hero from making what the French call a faux pas.

ary profession, this book by M. Claudel reveals him in the guise of a deeply religious believer. The volume consists of translations of letters exchanged between the cultured diplomat and M. Jacques Riviere. The latter desired to embrace Roman Catholicism, but was deterred by his "intellectual agnosticism." The book discloses that Ambassador Claudel himself was an almost invincible doubter, with regard to religion, when he concluded his university career. M. Riviere ultimately became a Catholic and readers of the Claudel letters obtain the impression that it was their matchless fervor which worked what the convert on his deathbed called "a miracle."

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

How a quarrel rent the air.

Over a common canvas chair! The week following the Ritzie Big-Time Circus was like the calm after the storm. There had been so much excitement before the circus and so much fun afterward as the neighborhood kids were continually asking "How they did this?" and "How they did that?" and "Was the man-eating tiger really a cub?" that the Ritzies found it hard to settle down to their everyday routine.

They had assembled in the little shop to talk things over and make new plans. They probably would have been content to laugh and jest about their big circus success if there had only been enough chairs to go around. As it was, the three boys had had to sit on the floor and found it none too comfortable. Patsy's mother had decided to take back the three old chairs that she had given them as she saw possibilities in painting them and using them for the front porch. So there were only two stools left in their club room, and of course these were given to the girls.

"We've got to have some more chairs," said Marty. "It isn't any at first Marty thought this would prove an incentive to promptness, and indeed it did, but after several mad scrambles had taken place for possession, it was decided that the chair should be awarded by merit.

This worked for a time and the one who had the best suggestion for a party or a game was allowed to use the chair at the next meeting. This happy solution didn't last long, for seeing the wisdom of voting for his own idea and thereby standing a better chance of winning the chair, each Ritzie held that his own idea was the best and things were at a standstill.

"I guess we'll have to have a canvas chair with our name carved on it," said Marty, quite perplexed at the sudden storms that had broken the peace of the little group—and all over a canvas chair!

So it was decided that each Ritzie should have a canvas chair of his own. Each member was to collect the material for his chair, consisting of the branches and a strip of canvas. A certain afternoon was set for "chair day" when they would all put them together at the same time, with Marty superintending the job. Everything went fine, because Marty was always ready to help drive a stubborn nail or untwist a knotted wire, and soon all four chairs were standing in a row with their bright-colored canvas seats swinging in the wind.

The twins set to the task of carving their names on their chairs and Patsy ran off to get paints and a brush to use as her tools. Betty looked helplessly about, wondering how she would ever be able to carve or paint her name on her chair. After a whispered conversation with Marty, she skipped gayly home, while Marty took out his pocket knife and started to carve "BETTY" on the top round of her chair.

The twins shouted "Betty is Marty's favorite!" teasingly at Marty, until they saw Betty coming across the lawn with a plate of sandwiches, and realized the bargain that he had struck.

The canvas chairs seemed like the most comfortable ones in the world to the Ritzies, as they sunned themselves in them and munched Betty's tasty jelly sandwiches. "They would certainly be an addition to the club-room," they decided.

If you need furniture for your play-hut, boys and girls, don't fail to make a canvas chair. You will enjoy it as much as the Ritzies did theirs. They are also great for a camping trip. Take a piece of canvas along and cut your branches after you arrive at the camp site.

In fact, the new canvas chair became the most popular piece of furniture in the clubroom. Whenever a meeting was called, everyone would make a dash for the canvas chair.

TEXT OF MEMORIAL ADDRESS AT WOODLAND PROGRAM MONDAY

Following is the complete address delivered by the Rev. W. N. Shank at the Memorial Day exercises in Woodland Cemetery Monday afternoon:

Sir Walter Scott describes Old Mortality as going through the cemeteries of Scotland, chiseling anew upon the tombstones the names that time had well-nigh obliterated. Asked to explain his zeal for the memory of these worthies, the old man replied that he wished to see the heroes of yesterday march forward side by side with the youth of today. The memorial occasion calls upon us as living to chisel anew the names of our heroes and more especially the principles for which they stood. Ours is a great nation having been forged out of the stalking of intolerance in religion, autocracy in common life and absolutism in government. We acknowledge our greatness in humility and thanksgiving. We would chisel anew the names of our colonial fathers who, largely through intolerance in religion sought a home of liberty amid the primitive scenes of a new world, enduring the hardships of a pioneering life known only to themselves. The Puritans of the north with their Mayflower compact, taking an exodus from English homes and laws, were truly God led as were the children of Israel under Moses. The Baptists tutored by Roger Williams gave largely practiced by America. The Wallons of New York wrote their life's history into the early life of a great colony. The Covenanters dipped their pens into their own veins and signed a covenant against persecution and helped to found three of our greatest colonies. The Quakers under William Penn held religious tolerance for every one including the Indians. The Roman Catholics named their colony after their beloved Queen Mary and exhibited tolerances far beyond some of their neighbors. The Episcopalians of Virginia gave to the colonies, Washington, Patrick Henry and the Lees. The bloody experiences of the French Huguenots did not deter them from finding an asylum in the sunny clime of the Carolinas. The poverty stricken were not overlooked in the founding of Georgia. The uniqueness of the colonial life welded into the early union is to be known when eighteen languages were spoken along a sea coast of eighteen hundred miles. Other nations had grown out of former governments and civilizations but ours grew out of the very atmosphere of liberty and the spirit of freedom, maintained until the present day, and is far reaching enough to influence the world, needing to be led by righteousness and justice.

Autocracy in common life took the form of human slavery, old as the history of the race. The conquered became the property of the conqueror. No greater moment came into the life of the conquering hero than to return to the scenes of his cheering worshippers, leading his captives, as spoils of war to become slaves.

What through custom and usage became the common practice of any people has taken most often, the mighty upheaval of war and the shedding of blood in revolution to bring about the reformation too badly needed. The evil of human slavery had fastened itself upon the body politic of a fair country until the geographical, economic and racial conditions seemed to demand its continuance. But the laws of humanity and the laws of righteousness surpass economic laws. The strife and compromise through the years are matters of our common history until the great apostle of labor, Abraham Lincoln, with an emancipation proclamation out of the awful furnace of bloody conflict, proclaimed not only four million black people free from human slavery but put labor upon a pedestal of honor such as only the world shall appreciate, as labor assumes the honorable position it justly deserves in the eyes of the world.

Incidentally connected with this mighty movement and a primary cause to its consummation was the secession movement of the great Civil War. What a calamity, not only to our own country but to the world should this have been accomplished! Only a very few of the host of young manhood of the sixties, remain to give us a personal reason, why it was not consummated but have given into our hands, a world power, rich, mighty, powerful and just, unsullied by slavery, where the toll of the factory and farm might enter his own home, the poor of any man in the world. The Civil War veteran builded better than he knew. They gave their lives that not a star should be lost from the flag, and that that flag should be the emblem of a mighty, powerful and just nation and as such the emblem for liberty and freedom from the weakest to the mightiest. We chisel anew their names upon their tombstones and drop flowers as the symbols of our tears that they may walk by the youth of today as an inspiration and that they may appreciate the supreme sacrifice made by them that such an heritage might be ours.

But a few of the Blue and Gray still live and age has wrinkled their brows and soothed their differences until forgiveness is in their hearts as they view the western horizon, and see the pathway that shall lead them to the Cities of the Dead with their comrades lost in battle or since answered the great roll call. Praise and honor for them while they live, roses and tears for them when they answer the last command. "Lest we forget." Hear the subdued orders of the captain as the enemy's vessel is beached and wrecked by superior sailors: "Don't shoot boys, the poor devils are dying."

The world has always had to deal with absolutism in power of an autocrat in government. We think of four autocrats of history, who have been responsible for great wars in time not very remote. The immense wealth and power of Spain in her best days were controlled by Phillip the Second, one, old miserly stubborn doltard, a sort of religious mule.

Louis of France, a little man wearing high heeled shoes and a powdered wig to give him the appearance of greatness.

Afterwards, this wealth was held by Napoleon of whom the French people say, he was as great as any man can be without principle.

Then the half-witted and stubborn George the Third, who caused the English people to lose the fairest of their possessions.

But what shall we say of him of our own age, who sits alone with his thoughts, protected by a coterie not his own, stripped of power and command, who struck the world full in the face until it staggered like a drunken man, who filled a sea with poverty stricken countries and millions of bloody dead and wounded, who made life as common dirt and brass more valuable than blood.

Dante need only put his ear to the heart of humanity, to hear the ache, the pain, the sorrow and wail by which he may describe a new Inferno.

Through these four years, men cursed, prayed and fought. Was it a nightmare? Ah, it is only too true. The last year of the war, may we say, was the mightiest struggle of all time—it was Gettysburg—with the soldiery of the world in conflict. The fiercest drive of the enemy was the ten, twenty, thirty miles to the gates of the city of Paris, "Backs to the wall," defending the channel ports with seeming defeat and destruction awaiting the Allied forces, when a young gladiator of the "Night's candles are burned low and found day stands tip-toe on the misty mountain top. I must go and live or stay and die."

The fair day of November came like the surrender of Lee at Appomattox when whistles blew, bells rang, tears flowed and thanks given to God. Let other hands write the history of this titanic struggle, we are too near to rightly judge. The veteran of the Civil War clasps with his feeble hand of age, the strong, young hand of the soldier of the World's War, and speaks words of thankfulness that they were able to answer their country's call in war but pray that such fate shall not await other generations. We shall have praise for the living and chisel deeper the names of our country's dead, who hath made our goodly inheritance possible.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED—The entrance of America into the World War finds Phillip Wynne Tracy IV suffering from the collapse of his first passionate love affair. Before this, he and Natalie Jones, who was the daughter of the Tracy's million, had had a childish engagement which was objected to by both Mr. Jones and Mrs. Tracy.

Phillip becomes interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother's. He takes her to luncheon and shortly finds he is falling in love. The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared. Rod and Phillip start for the barracks. Natalie goes to the depot to see them off and in her anxiety to see Phil she ignores Rod entirely. This nearly breaks his heart.

Phillip writes his mother and asks her to be good to Natalie.

Phillip finds he must leave for the southern training camp before seeing his mother again. Here he has a most unusual experience with a nameless girl.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXIX.
ON KITCHEN POLICE.

THE girl, still coughing, stood for a moment while Phil waited uncomfortably for the paroxysm to pass.

As soon as it became a little less she moved toward the window and pulled down the shade. Then she came back and sat down on the side of the bed.

"Gee, you have a terrible cough," said Phil.

"Yes, isn't it?" she answered, looking him, for the first time, straight in the face.

"When I saw you through that screen door, you looked as miserable as I feel," he volunteered.

"Why, what have you got to be unhappy about?"

"Plenty," answered Phil, laconically. "I have just had some terrible news from home. Everything has gone to smash in my family."

The girl laughed.

Phil thought that the sound was worse than a sob.

"Don't you know you're in luck if you even have a family? Can the self-pity, kid, for if you get me started, God help us both."

"You don't mean to tell me that you think you're really unhappy?" and she took him in slowly from the top of his sleek brown hair to the tip of his shiny shoes with an appraising eye.

What she found there she evidently found good to look at, for a look of tenderness came into her eyes that no man had probably seen there for many years.

Then because it takes only a look of sympathy and understanding to unlock the lips of a boy, Phillip Wynne Tracy IV, in that sordid crib down there by the boiler, opened his heart and told this poor, half-starved, flung aside morsel of humanity, the story of his first passion—the story of Lyra Hilliard.

His words came with a rush. The girl sat so still he was not sure she was listening, and finally to cover his own display of feeling to a comparative stranger he stopped in the middle of a sentence, "Gee, I don't even know your name," he exclaimed, "and you're nice, too."

At this the girl raised her face again. Two large tears welled up in her eyes and ran unheeded down her cheeks.

Seeing them, Phil knew she had heard everything and understood all.

"I am Phillip Wynne Tracy IV," he announced, as though he had made her one of his friends then and there.

"I'm going to send you a doctor."

"Oh, I'm all right. I'll get better or die soon—either one won't make any difference to the world, anyway."

"I'll stop on my way back to camp," he continued, as though she had not spoken.

She turned away her head and he heard her mutter as though to herself: "I have no money to pay a doctor." Then quickly she spoke as though she were afraid he had heard her.

"It is late, Wynne. You should be on your way back to camp."

Phil looked at his watch rather ostentatiously. It gave him a chance to recover from the sound of the name of "Wynne" from the lips of this girl—it was later than he thought. He realized he had to hurry.

"I'm so glad I found you."

he had used when he was trying to comfort his mother.

"Good-bye," he said. "I—I'd like to stay and talk with you longer, but I'll be late if I don't hurry, and I'd hate them to put me out of the army."

At this the girl smiled. With a little catch in her breath she exclaimed:

"Don't worry, kid. They wouldn't put anybody as nice as you out of any place."

Phil grabbed his hat and opening the door he rushed for the jitters.

The girl sat for a moment looking through the open doorway where he had vanished. Then she got up wearily, picked up the bill and dropped it in the upper drawer of the chest, walked over to the window and pulled up the shade.

Phil managed to get past the guard, although he was aware that it was about a minute after twelve and he congratulated himself that everything was all right.

He had forgotten, however, about the encounter with Lieutenant Andrews.

Soon he was lying on his camp cot, his eyes wide open in the darkness, wondering how such a "lady" could have come down so low.

The next morning at reveille he was told to report immediately after breakfast to the first sergeant.

He was mystified but he understood when Top Sergeant Muldoon said: "Lieutenant Andrews has reported that you were not in your quarters at midnight. Military discipline must be upheld, Tracy. Lieutenant Andrews has instructed that you be detailed to kitchen police for three days and that your passes to town be withheld for that time."

Phil started for the camp kitchen, passing Rod on the way.

"Where are you going, Wynne?" Phil saluted formally: "I have been detailed to kitchen police and am on my way, corporal."

"Damn corporal," said Rod. "Wait a minute."

"Yes, sir," said Phil, snappily, saluting again and coming to "attention," his eyes fairly dancing, for he knew he was getting Rod's goat.

"What were you detailed for, Wynne? You haven't been doing anything, have you?"

"That scurvy shave-tail Andrews caught me flirting with the girl he was at the hotel with last night and he reported I was not in at midnight. I had passed the guard at that time, however, and was on my way to my tent, but, of course, I couldn't say anything."

"The guard may have given me a little leeway, but some one reported I was not in my tent right at the instant of twelve. My passes are revoked for three days, but if Andrews thinks he is going to keep me in camp, damn him—he's got another think coming."

ALL the morning Phillip Wynne Tracy IV peeled potatoes and onions until he couldn't see out of his eyes, but in the afternoon he had his reward. In cleaning up things he found a fine porterhouse steak that had been laid aside for the officers' mess, and he beat the dog robbers to it.

Having toasted some bread on the top of the camp stove and after having broiled the steak he had even loving the best meal he had ever had in camp, when about four o'clock Lieutenant Andrews strolled around to see how that upstart of a Tracy was getting along.

"I'll just show him he can't play any tricks on me," he said to himself.

He found "the upstart" playing another trick, however. He was eating a gorgeous hot porterhouse sandwich and seeming to be enjoying himself very much. Phil came to attention as the lieutenant came up and, of course, the luscious sandwich dropped to the ground. He was happy that there was only a little of it left, however, and he was glad he didn't have to say anything, for his mouth was full. As it was, it was hard work for him not to laugh in the face of his superior officer.

That night he rolled up a blanket with some of his clothes and arranged it in his cot so it would look to the guard passing like a man sleeping with his face to the wall. Then he stole out.

He had planned to go back and see the girl on the narrow street again.

But as he was going down the main street he heard his name called and turning saw an outstretched hand from an automobile. Above it there was the radiant face of Marta Tannis.

Phillip stepped from the curb and grasped the girl's hand.

"I'm so glad I found you," Marta Tannis exclaimed. "I've been driving up and down this street for an hour hoping to do so. I'm just going back home now to pick up mother."

"She is all pepped up with the thought of meeting the son of Anne Tracy, as she calls your mother. We are going out to the country club. Would you like to go with us?"

"I'll be very glad to go, Miss Tannis."

"It's 'Marta' to you, you know," said the girl, smiling. "Come on, get in and we'll find mother, and don't you worry, we'll get you back to camp in the car."

Mrs. Tannis, too, was as cordial as possible when Phillip met her and had all sorts of questions to ask about his mother. When he told her that she had gone to Washington to work in the National Red Cross and mentioned Major Aukland, she exclaimed: "Oh, I remember Major Aukland. He was devoted to Anne before she was married, and some one of my friends wrote me that he left for England because he could not persuade her to marry him after your father died."

"Say, Phillip," interrupted Marta, "you certainly are not any soldier. Lieutenant Andrews would shed his life's blood for, if he found you in the hands of the enemy."

"Why should he? It's only private that shed their life's blood for officers. No officer has anything in common with a buck private, you know."

"Well, I told him you were a very special buck private, which didn't seem to make things any better. He was so furious that he couldn't see straight when you sent me that note last night. I think if he could have found any regulation that would have permitted it, he would have had you shot at sunrise this morning."

"I'm sure he would," said Phil, smiling. "As it was, he had me detailed for kitchen police, but it was worth it, you know. But let's don't talk about Lieutenant Andrews. I have met my mother's friends and it almost seems like meeting my own mother, and I'm going to have the first dance I've had since I joined the army with the prettiest girl I've seen since I've been a soldier."

"Phillip, you're like your father," said Mrs. Tannis. "He used to have the reputation of paying the nicest compliments of any young man of my day."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Will the daughter of Mrs. Tracy's friend restore Phil's faith in her sex? The next chapter will tell what happens.
